EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

SUBLIMELY beautiful—the "superb" Hancock fishing for gudgeons and baiting with tariff; ecce homo.

SECRETARY Sherman says Government receipts this month indicate a debt reduction of about eight millions.

THE great battle of ballots will be fought in two weeks from yesterday. Let every Republican bear this in mind.

ATTEMPTS are being made to interest the people of every State in a grand National Fair, to be held in Washington yearly, at which the varied productions of the country can be shown, and every visitor gain ample knowledge of our resources. All the Governors of States have been communicated with, and several have responded favorably. General Grant, who will pass a portion of the winter in that city, and who likes Washington very much, and owns property there, will do whatever he can—and that is much—to advance the project.

AN English visitor said to a friend the other day: "I cannot understand your American politics. I have travelled all over your vast country. I found prosperity everywhere. Every department of business, agriculture, manufactures, commerce and trade shares in the common prosperity which I find throughout the length and breadth of the land. It is everywhere. You are the most favored people on the face of the earth. And yet I find a great party working to overthrow the Administration under whom this prosperity has been secured. In England we change the Government when things go wrong. It would almost produce a revolution if men attempted a change when all was prosperous." Has he not stated the whole case in a nutshell?

THAT noble son of toil and champion of the rights of labor, Colonel John R. Fellows, in an address to those singular roosters, the "Hancock Republicans," at Chickering Hall, New York, the other night, expressed the profoundest sympathy for the laboring men of Ohio, who, he said, were "driven like dumb cattle to the polls." "Every laborer in the State," he said, "was taught the lesson day by day that he was a serf." The Colonel has undergone a change since he fought on the side of those who taught their laborers day by day the lesson with the lash that they were slaves. He is shocked now at the thought that the Ohio laborer who votes against free trade is a serf. Perhaps, though, he was thinking of the undertow in which the Democratic party is sinking when he called the Ohio voter a surf.

THE Fusionists in Maine are expected to vote for two Electors who have bitterly denounced this unprincipled political partnership. The chairman of the Greenback State Committee flatly refuses to call a State Convention to nominate new electors in place of Solon Chase and J. F. Turner, who are thoroughly in sympathy with Weaver's ideas and insist upon having a straight Greenback ticket. If there was the slightest danger of Republican defeat in November—and, happily, there is not—the votes of these two Greenback Electors might be of some consequence. If the Fusionists should succeed in carrying the State, Hancock would have three Democratic, and, possibly, two Weaver votes, if sufficient inducements were offered, but he could not get the votes of these two uncompromising electors. There is no reason, however, to count these slender chances. The Republicans will carry every Northern State and probably one or two Southern States, and the Fusionists in Maine will have nothing in common, except mortification and defeat.

The Victory and Its Meaning.

The Republicans of the whole country are to be congratulated upon the grand political victory in Ohio and Indiana. It was no less great than important, for its results determine, almost to a certainty, that Garfield will be the next President of the United States. The issue has been made upon the question of continuing the present policy of the government with regard to finance, to tariff, to the protection of the ballot, to the government of the whole people free from the domination of "a solid South" so lately in rebellion. This was the issue on the one hand, with the vaporing cry of the Democrats for "a change" on the other.

And the victory means that the business and material interests of this country wish no change. They are all in a fairly prosperous condition and they wish to be let alone to work out their own plans. The people at large have been, in their business interests, too often humbugged by the fair promises of politicians, and they have not forgotten their disappointment. The assurances of the Democratic leaders that Polk and Dallas would insure to the country prosperity, and that the tariff of 1842 would be preserved by their election, is still remembered by the older politicians, and these remember, too, that that same Dallas, as the Vice-President, gave the casting vote which swept the beneficial tariff of '42 from the laws of the land and destroyed thereby the business prosperity of the whole people. This fraud upon the credulity of the people cannot again be repeated, and the answer to the cry, "We will give you change, and will do better for you than the Republican party" went up on Tuesday last in Ohio and Indiana, and it is—we will not trust you; you have lied to us in the past.

"Push Things."

A saying of General Grant, says the New York Tribune, is in order, When the Confederacy was cracking and breaking, he telegraphed to Phil Sheriden, curtly and emphatically: "Push things." The Republicans can have no better order of the day, from this time until the November election.

The Democrats have ceased to believe their own lies. When Barnum, or John G. Thompson, or any other notorious dealer in misinformation, telegraphs his predictions, victimized Democrats faintly hope that the man is not as foolish or as false as he was last time. In brief, they begin to see that the campaign of falsehood and fraud has broken down. A vigorous effort, along the whole line, will convert a defeat into a rout.

If we wait a little, the force of old associations will resume its sway, and the average Democrat will still struggle blindly on. After a few days, it will be said that the Democrats never really hoped to carry Indiana or Ohio, and that all the work done and money spent there had the desired effect in preparing the way for Democratic victory in November. There will be persons who will believe this a week hence, if the Republicans give them a week to rest. The way to win is to push things now, and everywhere.

The campaign is not ended yet, by a great deal. Democrats are counting largely upon an unprecedented registration in New York. They look for heavy fraudulent majorities in this city, Brooklyn, Jersey City, and New Haven, and, if the Republicans are not vigilant, will get them. Maine saved the Republicans from defeat by over-confidence in Ohio; let us see to it that Ohio and Indiana do not defeat Garfield by over-confidence in New York and Connecticut. Every doubtful Eastern State can be made sure for the Republican party within one week, if they please to use that week wisely. The conviction that the North is against General Hancock, and refuses to trust Democratic professions, will sway thousands of voters, if the Republicans waste no time. This is the very moment to press home upon Northern voters the reasons for voting against a change, against the Solid South, and against the revolution in the tariff. Strike hard and quick, and the result will be victory.

Every Northern State can be and ought to be carried for the Republican electoral ticket. In the only Northern States which are still called doubtful, however, Democratic reliance upon fraudulent means is very great, and New York and New Jersey were carried in 1868 by such means. It is necessary to make the honest majorities so large that no fraud can overcome them, and this can be done, in each of these States, by pressing home the appeal to the business men and workingmen. Let it be known what sort of a change, in business, in the tariff and in the currency, is meant by the election of General Hancock, and the result in November will astonish the Democrats even more than the result in October.

What it is Worth.

The Republican victory in the October States has already been worth a good deal to the country. The outstanding bonds of the Government were worth, in the aggregate, $30,000,000 more on Thursday than on the preceding Monday, as shown by the prices paid in open market. Not even a Democrat will be so foolish, we imagine, as to say that this change is for the benefit of "bloated bondholders." The notion that the bonds of the United States are owned by a small class of rich institutions and capitalists was exploded long ago. The statistics of registered bonds alone show that the public debt is owned by a large number of persons, poor as well as rich. Every one of the 875,000 depositors in the savings banks of this State shares in the good results of the October elections. These banks hold $120,000,000 in Government bonds, which were worth Thursday at least $2,000,000 more than on Monday. Every depositor shares in the benefit, because it adds to the surplus of every savings bank, and makes it less possible that he should suffer loss. Every clerk who has put the savings of a lifetime into Government bonds, every widow who draws her income from them, every man who owns them or has an interest in them, direct or indirect, near or remote, is better off to-day because the Democratic party has been defeated in Ohio and Indiana.

The same thing is strikingly shown in other classes of investments. Comparing the prices of twenty-seven of the leading stocks sold in open market Thursday with the prices of Monday, they are seen to be worth $18,275,000 more now than they were then. An excellent Wall Street authority estimates that the increase in the value of negotiable securities daily quoted, including railroad bonds with those classes already noted, is at least $75,000,000. This is a part of what the Republican victory has already been worth to the country. Are we asked why this should be so? It is because every man who has savings or capital to invest feels sure of the future with the Republican party in power, no matter what his politics are. It is because even life-long Democrats are afraid of their party, knowing that it is full of men with dangerous views upon finance. Many a Democrat who talks for a change prays in his heart that things may stay as they are.—New York Tribune.

MR. BARNUM and his National Committee, Mr. English and his Indiana Committee, and Mr. John G. Thompson and his Ohio Committee, are just now engaged in issuing addresses by the cord in a sort of frantic endeavor to stop the tide. Misguided men! Haven't they had Mullett long enough to know his uses? The tide is too strong for addresses. Nothing but Mullett can dam it. Possibly it's too much for even him, but he has damned everything he has had anything to do with, and they may as well try him.

Hon. J. Parker Jordan.

It was so late before our Republican meeting, with its immense procession, closed its labors, that it was impossible to do justice to the very able and eloquent speech of the distinguished gentleman, whose name heads this article; and we now endeavor, from memory, to reproduce the main and striking features of his manly, honest, straightforward expositions of the political situation, which produced such a profound impression upon his audience.

When Mr. Jordan alluded to Gen. Grant, as he once did—there was a fervor—a pathos in his trembling voice that brought down the house, and in this he showed himself to be a master of the human passions.

With an emphasis and an energy of language that is seldom equalled, he painted the Solid South as a perpetual menace to our constitutional guarantees, and free institutions. He declared it was but a conspiracy to gain by fraud what she had failed to accomplish by the arbitrament of the sword, and characterized the entire scheme as revolutionary and at war with the best interest of the country; and continuing, he said that it was a monstrous proposition, audaciously put forth, to ask the loyal people of the North, 'ere yet the roses on the graves of her cherished dead had ceased to perfume the ashes of their loved ones—to give to the South the control of the legislative, judicial and executive departments, at a crisis like this—a crisis that finds no parallel in our country's history. The proposition, he said, was startling. He argued that the South was yet in a state of pupilage and had not educated herself up to that standard of Catholic nationality, which broadened, deepened, widened the human vision and which made us feel that amid the humanities of life there was a common brother-hood and a common destiny, and that the causes which had precipitated the late civil strife were too fresh in the memory of her people to give to their judgments that calm philosophic consideration, absolutely indispensable, to control the destines of a nation—argued with great force, both from contemporary and past history, that nothing the North could do would quiet and conciliate her people, unless she would be content to surrender into Southern hands the uncontrolled disposition of the purse and the sword. Nothing less than this would produce content. Continuing his argument, he characterized her complaints as childish and unmanly, and showed that her grievances were but the legitimate, unavoidable result of her own rebellious actions; and said that it could not be denied that the carpet-bag governments, so called, were but the outgrowth of her perverse, obstinate, unwillingness to participate in the formation of her State governments and to register and take part in her permitted reconstruction. While all this was going on, said Mr. Jordan, it is well known she stood by and pouted and fretted like the whipped child, because she was not at once restored to her original autonomy, "with the blood of martyred thousands still unwashed from her hands—she complained that she was not asked—nay importuned to assume her old position in the national counsels, without those preliminary safe-guards which the conqueror in all ages has felt it expedient to impose upon the vanquished.

The South seemed to have lost, continued Mr. Jordan with much feeling, those intuitive powers of reasoning which distinguishes us from the brute, and her people resolved in their hatred to persecute every man—in thousands of instances even unto death, who took a broader and more catholic view of our abnormal condition. They did not seem to recognize, as they do not even now, the fact that there was and still is a wide gulf between loyalty and disloyalty, treason and fidelity to obligation; and they would not see, or pretended not to see, that lifting her parasitical hands unsuccessfully against constituted authority, was an offence against law and humanity. Before her eyes there lay her beautiful valleys—her sunny plains, dotted with her heroic dead—and her rivers still red with the blood of her children; and there were too, her blackened chimneys and devastated fields—monuments of a stupendous crime, but even these did not seem to touch their hearts or to move her. They forgot, or seemed to forget, that the historic page furnished no instance of a vanquished people participating, upon equal terms, in the reconstruction of their political regeneration, and they therefore spurned with contempt the generous offer of a humane people—against whom they had waged a cruel and relentless war, and refused to be sheltered by a Government that stood ready to throw her protecting arms o'er a prostrate, fallen foe. I therefore, said Mr. Jordan, tell you to-night, that to allow the South now, in her perverse solidarity to control and shape the legislation of this country, the destiny of the Nation, in her present political temper, would be suicidal to the last degree. It would be but to take a backward step in the progress of material prosperity and civilized humanity and to surrender at once the fruits of a glorious victory into the hands of those who are waiting but the opportunity to avenge their supposed wrongs, for it is certain, he continued, that unless they were paid for their negroes—and this is susceptible of demonstration—they would reconstruct the Supreme Court to suit her political views and repudiate the national bonds, and reverse the engine of progress.

His masterly argument upon the tariff—our untarnished credit, solvent finances, our unparelled prosperity and unbroken, triumphant nationality—the direct result, he said, of Republican principles and Republican trophies, produced a feeling that cannot well be described, for the manner of Mr. Jordan, his pathos and energy were indiscribable. He painted with a masterly hand and with eloquent speech, the bright and brilliant future of our institutions, if no rude, uninitiated hands were permitted or allowed to minister at her constituted altars. He felt, or seemed to feel, that there was a string, which, when properly touched, made the human heart to answer. He saw, or seemed to see, and so said that in the glowing visions of our country's golden future, that these hoarse discords rung out upon the open air, this senseless clamor for a "change," would find its grave in the unbroken, steady progress of natural prosperity, the result of a protective tariff and stable constitutional currency, under the beneficent administration of the Republican party, and closed his masterly speech with an impassioned and glowing tribute to the christian purity, unspotted life, administrative ability and varied accomplishments of James A. Garfield, of which it is impossible to give even a synopsis.

General Hancock Writes Another Letter.

When General Hancock wrote his letter on "rebel war claims" everybody understood his position. His latest epistolary effort is, we regret to say, not equally successful. Does the letter mean that General Hancock stands on the Democratic platform of "a tariff for revenue only?" It does not say so, certainly, yet it would have been very easy for the General to have said this. Or does he repudiate the platform? If so he ought to have said that plainly.

The simple question which we have no doubt Senator Randolph meant to ask General Hancock was this: If the Democrats have a majority in the next Congress, and if they shall then keep the promise of their platform and revise the present tariff so as to make it a tariff for revenue only, would you veto the bill? The President has no other power over the matter than that. When General Hancock was asked about "rebel claims" he promptly and manfully replied that he would veto any bill of the kind if he were President, and the respectable part of the public was content at once. But on this tariff question, to put it mildly, the General dodges, as it were.

But that is useless, and worse than useless; it is damaging. The plain truth is that the Republican party is the defender of the present tariff. It enacted it and it stands by it; if it is continued in power it will defend and continne it. The Democratic party is opposed to this tariff; its leading and most influential men—such men as Morrison, Hewitt, Tucker, Wood, Carlisle, Cox, McLane and others are opposed to it

But it is useless for timid Democrats and old Whigs training in Democratic uniforms to try to muddle this matter. The Republicans are getting the full benefit of their recently begun frankness on the tariff question; the Democrats are losing votes at both ends by their effort at facing two ways. They cannot delude the voters who want the present tariff continued, and they disgust the voters who want it reformed. The Herald agrees with Senator Randolph that it is important that General Hancock should be rightly understood in this matter; and we hope he will write another letter.—N. Y. Herald.

Victory.

No pen can describe the feeling here, on receipt of the election news last week. It puts language to shame, and an attempt to describe it makes one feel guilty of injustice. The excitement everywhere knows no bounds. The rebels are silent and stay in their holes. The Republican tidal wave, retarded by the result in Maine, will sweep unresistingly every Northern State, and burry traitorism and Democracy deep beneath the loyal flood. No one expected such a total defeat of the Rebel party, and Republicans cannot as yet realize the true extent and significance of their victory. If we are to take the words of the Democrats, Garfield's election is assured. All through the contest their only cry has been: "As we understand the Republican managers, they propose to make Indiana the Presidential battle ground. It is left to a Democratic State to decide between Hancock and Garfield. If Indiana goes Republican we will give the election up."

Indiana Republicans seem to have accepted this challenge, and have truly, according to our Democratic friends, prophesied the result in November. The Western result is not necessary to satisfy the Republicans that New York is safe in the Republican column. The Republican procession in New York City on Tuesday night was the largest ever seen in that city of enormities. Fully 60,000 Republicans were in line, and still they pride themselves more on the quality than on the numbers. The participants were mostly men with considerable influence both as employers and employed. The Democratic majority in New York City will be much reduced and Republicans will make heavy gains in the State. New York will give Gen. Garfield and Arthur 40,000 majority.

It is reported that after the result became known, Hancock's headquarters on Governor's Island were silent as the grave. The General refused to see the few disgusted politicians that called upon him, and some fears are expressed that the result will have a serious effect upon his health, especially as he is of an apoplectic temperament.

One good result of the victory is seen in the fact that the banks after the election refused to sell government bonds at the figures of the Monday preceeding. They demanded, and got from purchasers an increase of 1¼ per cent.

Poetry.

The Minister's Daughter.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

In the minister's morning sermon
He had told of the primal fall,
And how thenceforth the wrath of God
Rested on each and all.

And how, of His will and pleasure,
All souls, save a chosen few,
Were doomed to the quenchless burning,
And held in the way thereto.

Yet never by faith's unreason
A saintlier soul was tried,
And never the hard old lesson
A tenderer heart belied.

And after the painful service
On that pleasant Sabbath day,
He walked with his little daughter
Through the apple-bloom of May.

Sweet in the fresh green meadows
Sparrow and blackbird sung;
Above him their tinted petals
The blossoming orchard hung.

Around on the wonderful glory
The minister looked and smiled:
"How good is the Lord who gave us
These gifts from his hand, my child!"

"Behold in the bloom of apples
And the violets in the sward
A hint of the old lost beauty
Of the Garden of the Lord!"

Then up spake the little maiden,
Treading on snow and pink:
"Oh, father! these pretty blossoms
Are very wicked, I think.

"Had there been no garden of Eden
There never had been a fall;
And if never a tree had blossomed
God would have loved us all."

"Hush, child!" the father answered,
"By this decree man fell;
His ways are in clouds and darkness,
But He doeth all things well.

"And whether by His ordaining
To us cometh good or ill,
Joy or pain, or light or shadow,
We must fear and love Him still."

"Oh, I fear Him!" said the daughter,
"And I try to love Him, too;
But I wish He was good and gentle,
Kind and loving as you."

The minister groaned in spirit
As the tremulous lips of pain
And wide, wet eyes uplifted
Questioned his own in vain.

Bowing his head he pondered
The words of the little one;
Had he erred in his life-long teaching?
Had he wrong to his Master done?

To what grim and dreadful idol
Had he lent the holiest name?
Did his own heart, loving and human,
The God of his worship shame?

And lo! from the bloom and greenness,
From the tender skies above,
And the face of his little daughter
He learned a lesson of love.

No more as the cloudy terror
Of Sinai's mount of law,
But as Christ in the Syrian lilies
The vision of God he saw.

And as when, in the clefts of Horeb,
Of old was His presence known,
The dread Ineffable Glory
Was Infinite Goodness alone.

Thereafter his hearers noted
In his prayers a tenderer strain,
And never the gospel of hatred
Turned on his lips again.

And the scoffing tongue was prayerful,
And the blinded eyes found sight,
And hearts, as flint aforetime,
Grew soft in his warmth and light.

Our Story Teller.

Put Yourself in His Place.

A STORY FOR FATHERS.

'Harry, my boy, what are you reading?'

Harry Nelson colored a little as he closed his book.

'Only Robinson Crusoe, papa.'

'Only Robinson Crusoe. I'm astounded at you, Harry Nelson, spending your time over such trash as that when the book shelves are full of histories, philosophies and compendiums. Is that the way, do you suppose, to become an intelligent and well-read man? Give me the book.'

Harry reluctantly delivered into his father's hands the pretty morocco-bound volume. Mr. Nelson turned it over and over again with a supercilious air.

'Where did you get this?'

'John Peaslee lent it to me, sir.'

'He lent it to you, did he? And a precious loan it is. Go right and carry it back to him.'

'But, sir—'

'Not a word of remonstrance; do as I tell you.'

'Papa, I haven't finished it.'

'All the better for you; you have already wasted too much precious time over it. The idea of a boy like you, with his education yet incomplete, sitting down to Robinson Crusoe!'

The accent of sneering contempt with which his father pronounced the last two words brought scarlet blood to Harry Nelson's cheek, but he obeyed without a word of remonstrance.

'There,' said his father, rubbing his hands triumphantly, 'I think I've put an end to that Robinson Crusoe nonsense.'

'Are you sure you have done right, Ir, my dear?' quietly asked Mrs. Nelson, who had been sitting silently at work in the bay window which opened out of the library.

'Rightly? Of course I have. Is the boy to spend his whole time in reading such absurd, improbable trash?'

'Harry is a very good student, and I do not think the perusal of a few such books would hurt him, merely by way of recreation.'

'Well, I do,' said Mr. Nelson irritably. 'I do not choose to allow it.'

Mrs. Nelson sighed softly, but offered no further remonstrance. In her secret heart she was convinced that her husband was altogether too severe with their boy; but she knew it would be productive of little good to express her opinion.

'Harry's grandfather will be here to-morrow,' she thought, 'and perhaps his advice and counsel may have a good effect.'

Mrs. Nelson looked forward with great anxiety to this visit of her husband's father. She somehow felt that things were going wrong in Harry's training and education, and she trusted with a blind, womanly faith that some influence would supervene to protect her son from the hardening effect of daily reproof and perpetual restraint.

'James entertains a deeper respect for his father than for any other living soul,' she thought as she arranged the furniture in the handsome suite of apartments destined for his use. 'If I can only win him over to my way of thinking!'

Judge Nelson arrived—a spare, hale-looking, little old gentleman with hair thickly strewn with gray and a blue eye as keen and penetrating as that of a falcon; nor did it take him long to perceive the exact state of things in his son's household.

'And what do you think of our son Harry, sir?' demanded the younger Mr. Nelson, rubbing his hands complacently, when the boy had gone to his bed at the close of the first day's visit.

'He is a fine boy, a very fine boy,' said the Judge briefly, and with that verdict the father was more than content.

'He is a good, conscientious fellow, and is unusually forward in his studies,' said Mr. Nelson. 'I would like you to look over them to-morrow, sir.'

'I will do so,' said the Judge.

'And, as an only son, he really has very few faults,' went on Mr. Nelson. 'Of course, like other boys of his age he has his failings—'

'But they scarcely can be called failings, James,' meekly interposed Mrs. Nelson. 'I think you are sometimes too severe with him.'

The keen-eyed old gentleman glanced from one to the other in silence. He perfectly comprehended the situation of affairs.

'Severe? Nonsense, Mary; you would spoil the child if you had your own way,' said Mr. Nelson a little impatiently.

The family were assembled around the breakfast table the next morning when the Judge came down, and Harry was, as usual, receiving constant admonition from his father.

'Harry, take your elbows off the table, sir—this minute! I am astounded at you. You are not holding your fork rightly, Harry. Now see here, young man, if you don't pay a little more attention to what I say to you, you will be sent from the table.'

Harry bit his lips with mortification. Mrs. Nelson looked annoyed. The Judge drank his coffee in silence.

'Where are going Harry?' demanded the father as his son took his cap after breakfast.

'Just over to Tom Leslie's, sir, to arrange about that boating-match.'

'But up your cap and stay at home, sir. Have you no lessons to look over before school?'

'Yes, sir; but I shall have plenty of time for those after I come back. It is not eight o'clock yet.'

'Permit me to be the judge of that, Harry,' said his father autocratically. 'I choose that you should remain at home and devote yourself to your studies. Idleness in a boy of your age is a crime too heinous to be tolerated.'

'How old are you Harry?' inquired his grandfather as the disappointed boy sat down to his study table.

'I am fourteen, sir.'

'Fourteen! You are nearly a man,' said the old man musingly.

'I wish he would conduct himself a little more like a man,' said Mr. Nelson. 'Harry, where are your feet? and why don't you sit up a little straighter when you study?'

The hour of school brought a blessed reprieve to poor Harry Nelson. He departed with his books under his arm, feeling very much like a relieved convict. Three hours at least before him during which he would be free from the perpetual fault-finding, reproof and censure that made his home life a burden to him.

'Harry,' said his father at dinner-time, 'you are eating to freely of those grapes; put back that bunch.'

'They are very fresh and fine, my dear,' said Mrs. Nelson timidly.

'I have only eaten two bunches, papa,' pleaded Harry.

'Put them back this instant, sir!' thunderered Mr. Nelson. 'Of all things I detest a glutton.'

And Harry obeyed with a sorrowful look at the purple clusters.

'Are your lessons all prepared for to-morrow?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Well, be sure you are in the house by eight o'clock.'

'Can I stay until nine, father? The other boys do.'

'I don't care for the other boys. You will be home at eight o'clock precisely.'

'James,' said Mrs. Nelson when the dispirited boy had gone, "I think you are a little too hard on Harry.'

'No, I am not,' said Mr. Nelson sharply; "women do not understand such things. I am father, and it is my business to keep him properly trained in.'

Mr. Nelson was smoking his morning cigar the next day as the Judge came down stairs.

'James,' said the old gentleman fretfully, 'is that the proper place for you feet—on the mantel?'

Mr. Nelson smiled and took them down.

'Not exactly, sir, I must confess.'

'And I desire that you will throw that cigar away. It is an outrageous habit, and one that I will not for an instant tolerate.'

Mr. Nelson looked surprised, but he obeyed.

'And what is this you are reading? One of Bulwer's novels! Have you read the last volume of Muddlehead's sermons?'

'No, sir; that is——'

The old gentleman took the noxious volume girgerly between his finger and thumb and tossed it out of the window. Mr. Nelson colored but respect for his father was too strong to allow him to remonstrate either by word or deed.

At this moment Mrs. Nelson came in to announce breakfast.

'James, the omolette is too rich for you; I desire you not to eat it.'

'But I have always been in the habit of eating them, sir.'

'No matter; you will not eat it to-day.'

'And I wish, James,' went on the Judge, 'that you would not make quite such a noise while you are eating. It is very ungentlemanly, and it disturbs me.'

'I was not aware, sir, that —'

'No; because you have fallen into the habit and no one has ventured to correct you. Harry, my boy, I'll take another muffin.'

Breakfast was no sooner over than the Judge began to search for some missing newspaper.

'You had it last, James. When will you ever learn to put things back in their places? Now if you will go to work and find that paper for me, I shall be very much obliged to you.'

Mr. Nelson glanced at his watch.

'Will not some other time do as well, sir? I have an engagement at nine, and——'

'No, sir. Some other time will not do as well. I want my newspaper now; and if you miss your engagement it will be a good lesson of order and method to you for the future.'

'Just exactly what father says to me a dozen times a day,' chuckled Harry in the back room where he was assisting his mother to move some plants. 'Oh, mama, isn't it fun to see him caught in his own trap?'

The newspaper was at length found, and Mr. Nelson was allowed to go to his office. But when he came home to his dinner his trials re-commenced. He was just going to his room after the midday meal when the old gentleman's voice recalled him:

'James, where are you going?'

'To take a little nap, sir.'

'A nap!—with all those law papers unfiled and the Jennings case not read up? A nap!'

'It will refresh me so much.'

'James, your time would be much better employed among your law books. Sit down to them at once. A nap! Why, sir, in my young days we never so much as thought of the thing.'

Thus was cut short in the bud Mr. Nelson's precious afternoon nap. He began to feel not a little annoyed.

He was taking his hat after tea when once more the Judge crossed his path like a vigilance committee of one.

'You are not going out to-night?'

'I must, sir; there is a political meeting at Astor Place.'

'But you will be back early?'

'By ten o'clock, sir, at the latest.'

'Ten o'clock!'—the Judge shook his head solemnly—'I must insist on your being home by eight, James!'

Eight, sir! That will be quite impossible.'

'Then you must remain at home. I can't have you loafing about the city after eight o'clock at night.'

'Who ever heard of a political meeting breaking up at eight?'

'I don't care a straw when your political meetings break up.'

'Yes; but, father——'

'Yes; but, James, I have made up my mind. Do not compel me to speak twice!'

'Sir,' said Mr. Nelson, firing up, 'this is very annoying to be checked and thwarted every moment. You are treating me like a child.'

'You don't like to be treated like a child, then?'

'No, sir; I must say that I do not!'

'Then how do you suppose your son Harry likes it?'

There was a moment's silence, and then Judge Nelson laid his hand kindly on his son's shoulder.

'My boy,' he said, 'put yourself where I have tried to put you during this day—in Harry's place. Judge how you would relish the kind of treatment you impose upon him, and consider well whether you are doing wisely.'

James Nelson stood silent. Something like a tear glittered in his eye.

'Father, he said, 'was this intended for a lesson?'

'Yes, my son, it was.'

'Then it shall not be thrown away. I see my fault now, and I will endeavor to check it.'

When Harry came home from a neighbor's house that night there were no fretful interrogatories, no carping criticisms.

'Well, my boy, have you had a pleasant evening?' his father asked kindly.

'O yes, sir. Charley Smith was there with his dissected maps, and, sir, I put them all together myself.'

'That was right, my son. Charley is a fine fellow, and I like you to associate with him. Suppose you invite him here to-morrow night?

'O, papa, may I? It would be so nice!'

Harry could hardly believe the testimony of his own ears.

'Mother,' he said as he kissed her goodnight, 'how nice it would be if papa was always so kind!'

'I think he will be in the future, my son,' said Mrs. Nelson, smiling. She was in the old Judge's confidence.

Nor was she mistaken. James Nelson's lesson had done him good.

—Gatherers of autumn leaves should beware of poisonous shrubs and trees. Dogwood can be distinguished by its bark, you know.

Local Small Talk.

—Now let the Democrats step up and pay their bets on Indiana like little men.

—Vennor, it is said, predicts snow this month. If so we have an idea that the old man will get floored this time.

—Deer hunting has commenced in earnest. Our sportsmen are meeting with good luck, according to all accounts.

—Sixteen thousand people attended the York fair in one day. That gets away with Centre county by several dozen.

—What did we tell you about Deschner's silk hat foreshadowing a Republican victory in Indiana? Score one for the plug.

—The Centre county corn crop, now being husked, is said to be a very fine one. The ears are large and well developed.

—That midnight parade by the Hancock Legion did not take place Tuesday night. Reason—too much Republicanism in Indiana.

—The good effects of the Republican victory in Ohio and Indiana can be seen already. Wednesday's frieght from this place went out with 25 cars.

—In addition to cows we notice that swine is now turned into the streets to roam about nights and destroy property. This is worse and more of it.

—"Tremendously fetching" and "ghastly jolly," are the latest in English slang adopted by New York swelldom. Now, Bellefonte, sail in. Slang is trump this year.

—A number of Democrats about town are consoling themselves with the thought that Delaware is yet to be heard from. Vain hope. Delaware, too, is going with the tide.

—For sale cheap—the caps, capes, blue shirts, lamps, tin horns, articles of Democratic thunder and empty bottles of chain lightning of the Democratic party. Apply early to Jackson L. Spangler, chairman.

—It now turns out that "the Dodo" did not mean the distinguished citizen who so manfully, over his own signature, fired through our columns a blank cartridge at the beastly bird a day or two since. "The Dodo" was not after "Miliken," and he hopes Mr. M. will put up his gun. It was quite another man he was after.

—The result is gratifying to the Democracy, and assures the election of Hancock.—Democrat. Well, well, if that isn't a poser! Gratifying to the Democracy! Ha, ha! If the news from Indiana is of the sort that gratifies Democrats—but, pshaw! what's the use of talking. Some folks never know when they are whipped.

—A vegetable curiosity, in the shape of an enormous sweet potato, weighing three pounds and three-quarters, was laid on our desk yesterday. A tag pinned to the tuber states that it was grown by Mr. W. S. Cadwallader, of Unionville, and is of the "Full-blooded Garfield" variety. It's a big one, as Garfield's majority in Pennsylvania will be.

— Chairman McClain, when he heard how his party had been seized by the heels in Indiana, remarked that he never had been very "sanguine" about that State. They do say, however, that he was so mighty sanguine that it would go Democratic a few days ago that he wanted to put up $25 on it. He was just joking, though, probably!

—A lot of Centre Hall, Centre county, Democrats had made preparations to hang General Garfield in effigy, but were afraid to do so. The fact that such an attempt had been made has called forth the remark of a soldier who fought under the "superb" that the fellow, or fellows, who will do so will add but another claim to the rebel list before Congress. Those bluebellied Copperheads over in Centre had better look out.—[Curwensville Times.

—When, O, when is the borough ordinance preventing cattle from running at large on the streets, going to be enforced? If ever, now is the time, for certainly it has become an abominable nuisance. Linn street is pastured from one end to the other every night in the week by a drove of cows, owned principally by wealthy men, and the next morning the street and sidewalks much more resemble a barnyard than a public thoroughfare. Down with the abuse!

—All day Wednesday from morning until night knots of people were collected on the street corners, in hotels and other public places discussing the result of the political whirlwind in Indiana and Ohio. The Republicans were jubilant, moved around briskly and were open to argument on the "change," "329," "free trade," or any other subject. Now and then a Democrat would engage in the conversation, but when anything was said about Indiana, would remark, "Just you wait," and then skip.

Port Matilda Locals.

An alarm of fire caused quite an excitement on Friday night. The alarm was given by the blowing of the mill whistle, and quite a crowd gathered to the rescue in time to save a destructive fire. The only loss was about 250 bushels of charcoal and damage to the coal beds in which the fire started.

A little fire occurred in Mr. Berntheisel's photograph gallery last week. While Mr. B. was finishing up and drying some pictures, the room being crowded, the varnish was upset and the contents of a large phial caught fire. It caused quite a stampede among the ladies and children, but luckily the combustibles were thrown out and fire extinguished before any damage was done except the burning of a few chemicals and picture cards.

Rev. James Hughes of Bellefonte and Mr. John Harpster of this place, both old hunters, brought to our town on Saturday last a large four-pronged buck weighing about two hundred pounds. The deer was shot on the Allegheny by Mr. Hughes. They brought him to the photograph gallery here and had their pictures taken, gun in hand and dog lying beside his captured prey. The picture is one of beauty to a hunter and makes him feel like starting with his gun to the camp, and it will no doubt be prized by the children and grandchildren of these hoary-headed hunters in the near future when there will be no deer to roam over our mountains.

The Democrats had a club meeting here on Saturday evening at which, I am told, there were three members, and some of these played sharp by marking 329 on the M. E. parsonage, and on some other houses. This is similar to the way the Northern Rebs marked the Republican houses in Clearfield county during the war.

We saw a little babe reach for the moon the other night and want its papa to give it to him, but it was just as the Democrats wanting the Presidency—they can't reach it.

One of the most pleasing features of politics in our town during this campaign was the demonstration of Young America (who are loyal to their country and to the cause of Garfield and Arthur) on Tuesday evening. Nearly all the boys in town are Republicans, and on the day named they went three miles from here, got a pole sixty feet long, and after suspending from its top a Garfield and Arthur flag they raised it amid rousing cheers, after which Mr. Weston made the boys a neat little speech. He told them that ere long they would be the voters, and every one of them seemed to be inspired with a love for the old Union i. e. the Republican party. A. B. C.

Newspaper "Enterprise" and Downright Lying.

It must be acknowledged by all that we have two very enterprising Democratic journals in this town. One is issued on Thursday, and in speaking of the elections which occurred on Tuesday—and which the Democrat should have had some reliable information about—it tells its readers that Indiana, which has gone Republican by 8,000 majority, "has gone Democratic" and that "the result is gratifying to the Democracy and assures the election of Hancock."

The Watchman follows Friday morning with the astounding information that the Democratic State ticket in Indiana with the exception of Governor is elected, and that the Republican majority in Ohio has been reduced! It winds up its article with a lot of stale dispatches at least two days old. What a nice thing it is to have enterprise!

Another Case Cleared Up.

It having been reported that Mr. A. C. Moore, of Milesburg, was a deserter from the army, the following is furnished us for publication in extenuation of the crime:

This is to certify that I am personsonally acquainted with Mr. A. C. Moore, late a sergeant of Co. "B," P. V.; that I enlisted him as a private soldier on the 29th day of August, 1862; that he served well and faithfully as a soldier in my company; was wounded at Five Fork, Virginia, on the 31st of March, 1865, while in discharge of his duty; was sent to hospital and subsequently honorably discharged on the 22d of May, 1865, in pursuance general order War Department dated 4th May, 1865.

JAS. F. WEAVER,
Late Captain Co. B, 148th P. V., and Lieutenant-Colonel 148th P. V.

J. C. P. JONES,
Late 1st Lieut. Co. B, 148th P. V.

BOGGS TOWNSHIP, Oct. 14, 1880.

Mr. Moore's record, as published in Bates' History, is as follows:

ALFRED C. MOORE, late sergeant Co. B, 148th Regt., Pa. Vols; enlisted Aug. 29, 1862. Pr. to serg't. Nov. 19, 1863. Wounded at Five Forks, Va., Mch. 31, 1865. Discharged by G. O., May 22, 1865.

Judge Orvis Turned Poet.

On Monday the Court House bell rang, the lawyers assembled and crier Galbraith opened court in due form. There were but two cases to be tried. One was continued, owing to the absence of a witness. The other, a habeas corpus case, did not come up for trial till afternoon. The atmosphere was warm and sultry in the court-room and while the lawyers were dragging through the tedious examination of witnesses, the Court, in meditating over the prospects of a Democratic victory in Ohio and Indiana on the morrow, seemed to have concluded, in his own mind, that the Credit Mobilier slander on Garfield had not been sufficiently advertised. So the Judge seized his pen and evoked the Democratic muse. In a twinkling he had produced the following:

"Garfield had a little horse,—
He thought it wondrous fine;
He speeded it around the course—
It scored: 3:29."

His Honor was pleased. The case went on, but the Judge was all oblivious. He called his shadow, Chairman Spangler, to the bench and submitted the production to him. The latter was delighted. He seized the manuscript, rushed off to the Watchman office (because Meek and Orvis are now on friendly terms—Meek having been paid off) and had the "poem" printed on 8x10 slips in the shape of dodgers.

These were delivered to Garman's hostler—Jimmy Cornelius by name—who, with a companion, spent most of Monday night in posting them on pavements and houses of Republican citizens. Yesterday morning when the good people of the town looked in pity at the latest idiotic dodge of the Democracy, a few of them knew that it was the work of a Judge of the Court, the Chairman of the Democratic Committee, and an hostler at Garman's Hotel!

How They Take It.

Our Democratic friends about town, are trying to keep up an unruffled exterior over the news from the West, but it is evidently hard work. There is no mistaking the fact that they look upon the unfavorable returns, to them, with dire forebodings, but still cling to the hope that later news will change their ticklish situation.

Editor Meek of the Watchman goes one eye on it, and says it will be all right in November.

Chairman Spangler steps around lightly, looks sort o' nervous like, and says little.

Lawyer Hoy, who didn't make the county chairmanship, says — but, come to think about it, Adam hasn't been heard of since the first dispatch came in from Columbus.

Jim Schofield, the irrepressible came forth from his domicile early yesterday morning, peeped cautiously over the fence, then scooted for his shop, looking neither right or left, up or down.

W. C. Heinle thinks it wasn't much of a shower, any how. He knows the Indiana hurricane will not blow him off the track which leads to the District Attorneyship, and winks a knowing "wunk."

D.G. Bush walks about with a don't-care-if-we-are-licked air, swings his cane lightly to and fro, and smiles at the chagrin of his Democratic brethren. Not badly hurt.

District Attorney Fortney rushes around wildly, avoids public places, and seems to have been hit in a vital spot.

Major Forster tries to look unconcerned, but can't to save his neck. He knows the jig's up, and it galls him to the quick. He will tell all about it in his paper to-day.

William Harper is the sickest one in the lot. "Beely" was so anxious to bet on Indiana and Ohio that, had he found takers, he would have been bankrupt this morning.

A Traveling Humbug.

It having come to our notice that a certain individual calling himself Dr. Morris—said to be short, heavy-set, sandy hair and moustache—is traveling aronnd the county selling spectacles and treating eyes, and representing himself as a relative of one or the other of our firm, we hereby offer a reward of $25 for his arrest, as we have no traveling agents, and no person is authorized to use our name. Said Morris is a fraud and a humbug, —at least in the use of our name in any way whatever.

S. & A. LOEB.

—We are having an unusually lengthy spell of delightful weather. This, with the inspiring news from Hoosierdom is enough to make everybody feel good.

—We are now entering upon what is called "Indian Summer," the most beautiful season of the year in Pennsylvania and the Northern States.

—Visitors to town very much admire the brilliant autumn tints displayed on the Muncy mountains.

Agricultural Implements, &c.

NEW ENTERPRISE.

ALEXANDER & CO.,

Agricultural Implement

AND

SEED STORE,

BELLEFONTE, PA.

They mean by this all the name imports, that is, to deal in and to furnish to farmers at the lowest possible price everything in the shape of an agricultural implement that farmers use, including SEEDS of all kinds.

At present we have on hand and are the authorized agents for the sale of the SYRACUSE CHILLED PLOW, made at Syracuse, N. Y. It is the best chilled plow now made; also the Keystone and iron beam plows, made at Centre Hall. No better plows than these can be had for the same amount of money. Also the Centre Hall Cornplanter. We need say nothing about the merits of this planter, as the 2000 now in use in Centre county demonstrates them to be the best.

HARROWS and CULTIVATORS of the latest improved patterns.

MOWERS, REAPERS and GRAIN BINDERS.—Of these we sell the Osborne, either as separate mowers, combined reapers and mowers, single harvesters, or as combined reapers and binders.

THE WHEELER, No. 6, as a combined machine, is the best machine of the kind in the market.

The greatest improvement of the age is the NORRISTOWN GLEANER AND BINDER. Call and see it. It is wonderfully perfect.

Any boy twelve years old, with one horse, will follow and bind all the grain that any reaper with side delivery will cut. It not only binds but gleans, and will save the price of the machine in one year by taking up from the stubble that which is now lost.

The McSHERRY GRAIN DRILL either with or without broadcast hoes, with or without fertilizer and seed sowing attachments. It is the best grain drill for all purposes in the market.

The GEISER THRESHER AND SEPARATOR.—The reputation of this machine is so well established that we can say nothing about it that the people do not know. Any person wanting one, or in need of repairs for those now in the county, please call.

HEEBNER'S PATENT LEVEL TREAD HORSE POWER, for one and two horses, with Patent Speed Regulator. Little Giant Thresher and Cleaner.

THE VICTOR CLOVER HULLER—Sole Agents for Centre county.

Wagons, Carriages, Buggies and Phaetons.—We are agents for the sale of the celebrated CONKLIN WAGON, the reputation of which is so well established; also of the CORTLAND PLATFORM SPRING WAGONS, Carriages, Phaetons and Buggies. All are warranted. Call and see specimens and examine catalogues as to styles and prices before buying elsewhere. Catalogues furnished on application.

PLASTER and FERTILIZERS. — Cayuga Plaster, finely ground, as good as the best Nova Scotia, at the low price of $7.00 per ton. Peruvian Guano sold on orders only. Phosphates always on hand. Special manures for different crops sold upon orders at manufacturers' prices.

POWDER.—We are Dupont's agents. Blasting, Sporting and Rifle Powder on hand and sold at wholesale prices; also fuse.

GRAIN.—After the growing crop is harvested we will be prepared to pay the highest market price for all kinds of grain.

COAL.—Our yard is always stocked with the best Anthracite Coal which we sell at lowest price.

LIME.—We make the best white lime in the State. Its properties for mechanical and agricultural purposes excel all others.

FAIRBANKS' SCALES.—We are their agents for Centre county and will supply all parties wishing good and true scales at their lowest prices.

We extend an invitation to everybody in want of anything in our line to call at our store rooms, opposite the Bush House, and see what we have, and learn from those in attendance more particularly the scope of our business. ALEXANDER & CO.

FARM AND IRON ORE MINE

AT

ORPHANS' COURT SALE.

WILL BE EXPOSED AT PUBLIC SALE on the premises, by order of the Orphans' Court of Centre county, Pa., on Wednesday, Nov. 10th, 1880,

All that messuage or tract of land known as the

James A. McCalmont Farm

Located in Marion township, Centre county, Pa., about one mile west of Jacksonville and eight miles east of Bellefonte—a first class Nittany Valley farm, bounded by lands of W. W. Beck, Joseph Long, heirs of John Beatty, and heirs of Thomas Huston, deceased, containing about 193 acres, net measure, 150 acres are cleared and in a high state of cultivation, divided into convenient fields under good fences. The balance of the land is covered with thriving timber.

A Good Mansion House,

Two tenement Houses, frame Barn, with other outbuildings, with wells and cisterns convenient.

This farm contains the celebrated IRON ORE BANK known as the McCALMONT ORE, which is of the best quality, analyzing 56 per cent. carbonate of iron, with the smallest trace of phosphorus; in addition to which there are indications of ore of same quality in the fields adjoining, which can be washed from the earth in large quantities. Water ninety feet below the surface.

This farm is located in a good neighborhood, convenient to schools, churches, mills, and within three miles of Howard station on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, to which the road descends all the way.

Persons wishing to view the property before the day of sale are invited to call on James S. and Robert McCalmont, who reside on the premises.

Sale will begin at 1 o'clock P. M. of said day.

TERMS.—One-third of the purchase money to be paid on confirmation of sale, one-third in one year, and the balance in two years thereafter; the two latter payments to be secured by bonds and mortgage on the premises, with interest.

WM. SHORTLIDGE,
Executor.

Bellefonte, Pa., Sept. 2, 1880. 35ts

VARIOUS CAUSES—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.

For sale by all dealers. 12-40-1y 2

Two Valuable Farms at Private Sale.

THE REAL ESTATE SITUATE IN CENTRE COUNTY, belonging to the heirs of the late DR. A. A. HENDERSON, is offered at private sale. It consists of two valuable farms, one situate in College township, containing about two hundred and ten acres of cleared land and thirty acres of timber land, thereon erected a LARGE STONE MANSION HOUSE, TWO GOOD FRAME DWELLING HOUSES, Bank Barn, and all necessary outbuildings. Also, a GOOD ORCHARD of eight acres. Springs, and a stream of running water through the farm.

Another situate in Harris township, containing about one hundred and sixty (160) acres, (all cleared excepting eight acres), thereon erected a LARGE BRICK DWELLING HOUSE, bank barn, corn house, ice house, and all necessary outbuildings. There is also a good young Orchard on this farm, and the right to pipe water from a stream of running water.

Also a TRACT OF TIMBER LAND on the north side of Tussey mountain, containing one hundred acres, and another containing between one and two acres, with water right sufficient to run machinery of mill.

Payments will be made to suit the purchasers. For terms and particulars call upon or address, W. W. LEECH,

A NEW DEPARTURE!

BEST PLOW IN THE WORLD!

THE SYRACUSE CHILLED PLOW CO.
of Syracuse, N. Y.

Are now putting on the market a Plow that is as much superior to any Plow heretofore made as the Plows of the past few years have been superior to those made half a century ago.

It combines all the excellencies of any Plow in use.

It obviates all the objections made to any other Plow.

In addition it embraces several new features of the greatest value, for which we have obtained exclusive Patents.

Its Beam, Clevis, Jointer Standard and Wheel Standard will be STEEL, and its mold board will be a composition of Steel and Iron chilled under a process for which we have also obtained an exclusive Patent. It will be called

THE SYRACUSE CHILLED STEEL PLOW

Its weight will be eighteen pounds less than our present styles.

A first-class Steel Plow, made in the ordinary way, full rigged, retails for twenty-two dollars. Inferior Steel Plows retail from sixteen to nineteen dollars.

The price of our new Plow will be but Seventeen Dollars, and it will be the cheapest Agricultural Implement ever sold.

Its mold board will outwear three of the very best kinds of the ordinary steel mold boards.

It will scour in soils where all steel plows and all other plows have hitherto proved a failure.

With this Plow will be introduced a corrugated Plow Point and Jointer Point, on which we have also obtained a Patent, and which is also a great improvement, both as regards strength and wear.

The Jointer can be shifted so as to take more or less land, and also more or less pitch, and it can always be kept on a line with the Plow.

The wheel will run under the beam or one side of it as desired, and always kept in line.

The beam is adjustable for Spring or Fall Plowing, and also for two or three horses.

The handles can be adjusted to accommodate a man or boy, on the same Plow.

It is a perfect Plow.

Wooden beams are going out of use because they shrink, swell and warp, and never run two seasons alike.

Iron beams are too heavy.

Malleable beams become demoralized and bend, which is much worse than to break.

A Steel beam is the necessity of the day. It is three times as strong and very much lighter than any other style.

When we say a Mold board is chilled, the farmers know it is so.

We do not palm off on them a composition of various metals and call it chilled metal.

We want agents for this new Plow in every town in this State.

We can give but a very small discount to them, but we will pay the Railroad Freight.

We propose to place this Plow in the hands of Farmers as near the cost of manufacture as possible.

It will be the best Agricultural Implement ever sold.

It shall also be the cheapest.

Persons therefore who are not willing to act as agents on the principle that "a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling," need not apply for an agency.

No Plows on commission. All sales absolute.

☞ This is the only Steel Chilled Plow in the World.

Steel costs several times more than Iron.

But this Plow, full rigged, by giving small discounts, can be sold for Seventeen Dollars. Compare this price with that of any Iron Plow ever made.

It is cheaper than any other Plow now made would be at five dollars and a half.

Where there are no agents we will, on receipt of Seventeen Dollars, send a Plow to any Railroad station in the State and pay the freight. Address,

Is a sure cure for all the ordinary diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. It cures and prevents Chicken Cholera. Your cow is certain to yield 25 per cent more and better milk and butter. Stock fattens on one-fourth less feed!

Being in possession of a large number of excellent testimonials, I subjoin a few:

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—GEORGE BOND, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, JONAS PASOUR, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—JONATHAN WEAVER, Berlysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS. WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter cured the chicken cholera. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

—The weather just now is decidedly cool and bracing.

—Huntington has a synagogue established by the Jewish population of that place.

—People began to think on Saturday that Vennor's snow storm prediction was about to be fulfilled.

—Gen. Beaver is announced to speak in Huntingdon on the 26th inst., with Governor Hoyt and other distinguished gentlemen.

—Mr. E. S. Garver, formerly a resident of Centre Hall, has been nominated for the Legislature by the Democrats of Worth county, Mo.

—The young men's Garfield club of Huntingdon is uniformed with red flannel swallow-tail coats with white facing. When on parade the members are mounted.

—Mr. Aaron Williams very sensibly declines to run on the Greenback-Labor ticket for District Attorney. He gives his reasons for declining in another column.

—The Republicans seemed to have recovered from their defeat in Maine. —Wms'pt. Dem. Ex. Well, yes, we are able to be about again, thank you. By the way, how did that Indiana prescription effect you?

—Many congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gephart, and our best wishes for the little stranger. We hope he may live to be an honor to both father and mother, be elected a Republican President of the United States and be an honor to his country.

—If some energetic monied man would come to Bellefonte and invest a portion of his money in the erection of substantial dwelling houses, and then rent them at prices in reach of the laboring men, he would realize a fortune in a short time. At present houses are scarce and rent outrageously high.

Snow Shoe Republicanism.

The first pole ever raised by the Republicans of Snow Shoe went up Thursday afternoon, and when the large and splendid flag floated to the breeze, cheer upon cheer, by the crowd, went up for Garfield and Arthur, followed by the thunder of the mountain howitzer. Mr. editor, I would just like you could hear that howitzer. It must have been expressly made for Snow Shoe, so as to have sufficient space for the vibrations. I cannot describe it better than to say it is tremendous.

As the Republicans of Snow Shoe scorn to trample upon or wound the feelings of a fallen foe, Ohio and Indiana was not mentioned. Their humane feelings even carried them further, and by way of mollifying and binding up the wounds of Democracy, their heavy and only argument against Gen. Garfield—329—was nailed to the pole, and as the pole stands in the centre of Broad street, fronting Moshannon avenue, as well as the East and West Park—in what more conspicuous point could so overwhelming an argument be placed? It was also suggested, and is being carried into effect, to raise a contribution to buy the Watchman's roosters, as well as the tin horns gotten by the Hancock club of Bellefonte to celebrate the Democratic victory in Indiana and Ohio, as they were not used on that occasion, I believe, nor likely to be needed by that party during the balance of the campaign. What could be more generous than to take them off their hands? Yet after all this kindness, Democracy keeps in doors and sulks.

The meeting in the evening at Mechanics Hall was more than a success, although there were scarcely ten Democrats present; whether they disliked to hear from Indiana, or whether an order had gone forth that they should not attend, I cannot say, but they were certainly conspicuous by their absence. Addresses were made by Messrs. Love and Keller of Bellefonte, and the whole ground gone over by them in the most masterly and eloquent style.

I think no laboring man who heard their argument and had any regard for the future of himself or his family would vote for Hancock and free trade.

Snow Shoe will do its duty on the 2d of November, even against such knock-down arguments as Jersey Lightning. SPECTATOR.

Mud-Slinger Kurtz on Murray.

Our country contemporary over the mountain, the Centre Reporter, which has probably had a "nip" from Curtin's barrel, has let up on General Garfield long enough to throw a few handfuls of mud at Mr. Murray, the Republican candidate for Congress in this district. Among other things the Centre Hall scribe informs his readers that Mr. Murray is a "third-rate" lawyer of Clearfield. To show that the editor of that sheet is actuated only by selfish motives and a desire to please Curtin in making such assertions, we have only to say that Judge Orvis has himself said that he considers Mr. Murray one of the ablest and most prominent lawyers in the district, and every fair-minded Democrat who is acquainted with the gentleman will say the same thing.

Quite likely the people of the county will conclude that Judge Orvis, who has known Mr. Murray for many years—both in the Court room and in private life—is more capable of judging of his qualities as a lawyer and a man than the editor of the Reporter, who grinds out slander and abuse for pay. The Reporter should know by this time that this is a very bad year for Democratic mud-throwers, as was demonstrated at the recent elections, and the more mud it throws at Murray the greater will be his chances of going to Congress.

If Curtin is wise, and really desires to be elected, he'll close up Kurtz's slander factory and engage a new striker.

Respectfully Declines.

BELLEFONTE, October 15.

JACOB V. THOMAS, ESQ., Chairman of the Greenback organization of Centre county:

DEAR SIR—I see by the "Bellefonte Morning NEWS" that my name appears therein as the nominee of the Greenback party of Centre county for the office of District Attorney.

With due regard for the compliment paid me, I desire to say that I am not a candidate for the office, and my name having been used without my knowledge or consent, I positively refuse to stand as the candidate of any party at this time.

Being identified with the Democratic party, and pledged to the support of its nominees at the approaching election, I deem it but just to myself and to those who placed my name upon your ticket, that I should make this public announcement.

Respectfully yours,

A. WILLIAMS.

—The reunion of the 49th regiment will be held at Lewistown on Thursday, Nov. 18th.

"Ugly Joe" Heard From.

While out on some business the other day I had occasion to pass by the Hancock pole raised in the "Loop" some time ago, and at the erection of which A. G. Curtin officiated, and while looking at it I wondered how it could be that a man who has had as many honors heaped upon him as he has had could stoop to such demagogueism as he stooped to at the erection of that pole; but, "Alas, how are the mighty fallen." There he stood running his fingers through his hoary locks talking to those whom he had not long since stigmatized as the "double skulled dutch," and telling them that he wanted those gray hairs to go down to a Democratic grave and that he wanted be buried among them (the loopers) his Democratic brethren. Great heavens! think of it—Andy Curtin wishing to be buried in the "loop." You don't mean that, do you Andy? Ugly Joe wants to say to him that a greater one than Curtin has said that "want of decency is want of sense" and he had better apply that saying to his speeches by refraining from telling obscene stories. They do not take with intelligent people. And another thing Andy, evil communications corrupt good morals, and such will never go to heaven; so if you don't stop that you will go further than to a Democratic grave with your Democratic brethren, and the place you stop at won't be Congress, either. Take my advice, knock off this demagogueism, quit telling smutty stories, and get ready to die—both naturally and politically—for according to the natural order of things your natural life cannot last much longer (your actions and words indicating that you have already entered your second childhood) and judging from the number of Democrats I hear saying "I can't touch Curtin" I would say that you will run across your political death as early as November 2, 1880.

There is a verse of a hymn commencing "O turn ye, O turn ye, for why will ye die," but Andy's hymn after November 2, 1880 will commence "I did turn, I did turn, and still I did die."

I had a look at W. J. Thompson of Potter township the other day and I declare he looked exactly like a man who was sure of the honor of representing his county in the Legislative Halls of the Keystone State, but I fancied that he wore a sort of an anxious look along with it; this I attributed to the doubtful state of affairs in Indiana at the time I saw him, but he can cheer up now; let us all cheer—Ohio and Indiana all right, Maine coming all right in November, New York sure to come out on the side of sound Republican principles when her time comes—what better prospects, what higher hopes, could we want? Why it looks very much as though the people intend electing Garfield to the Presidency of this grand old Republic, and doom that No. 40 Statesman to a trip up Salt River, there to sink down in the briny marshes—away down—in fact so far down that it will be impossible to ever resurrect either him or his party. 'Twill be a sad, sad sight to see the "superb soldier" sitting in the stern sheets of the Democratic boat under his once bright but now Democratic stained epaulets, listening to the patter of the feet of Barnum's mules as Wade Hampton, Ben Hill, and our friend Beltzhoover are driving them towards the marshes; but so it will be, and there will come the time that Meek's roosters will refuse to crow, their heads will droop, and abroad the news will go that Meek himself is down with chicken cholera, and that Fury has fallen in the gutter that his feet have worn in the sidewalk between the Watchman office and his favorite saloon; Curtin will turn Republican in order to get an office, but will be disappointed; Forney will die with grief; Wade Hampton will declare to the Southern brethren that it is no use to fight for the same principles that Lee and Jackson fought for during the war; Ben Butler will go into the spoon business, the country will prosper, this free trade business will be killed dead as a door nail, the soldier will get the pension he is entitled to, Democrats in general will weep, wail gnash their teeth, and howl with mingled rage and disappointment; Republicans will be joyful, and the land will be saved from ruin. I want all my Centre county friends to keep up a good heart, to work, to act, in order to bring this state of things about; and I can assure them that if they do their duty as well as they will do it here in Mifflin county, Andy will have another spell of Horace Greeley sickness this autumn.

Now I asked the Democracy of Centre county some questions a short time ago that remain unanswered, and in conclusion I wish to ask them this one. How can you as a genuine, true, Democrat—pure and guileless—vote for a worn out Republican who, in his second childhood plays Democrat and works demagogue in order to be sent to Congress.

UGLY JOE.

Jollification at the State College.

The Republican students of the State College celebrated the Indiana victory by firing a salute and marching around to the several professors' houses, headed by the drum corps. The boys deserve praise for their pluck; for their Democratic friends had broken into the armory and stolen the rammers for the cannon and also spiked them. But "few things are impossible to diligence and skill," especially to skill, for the Democratic youths were soon greeted by the boom of guns. The boys are very much pleased with the kind treatment which they received at Bellefonte on Friday evening. Judging from present appearances we think it will furnish them a topic for conversation for the remainder of this term. We heard our young friend "Vulcan" remark that the next Republican mass meeting would be attended by every Republican student in College. But "Vulcan's" got a girl down there, that's what is wrong with him. BLANK, SR.

Surrendered.

[Under the above heading our Boalsburg correspondent, signing himself "Boalsburg," writes as follows:]

The Democrats of Harris township put up a Hancock and English flag some time in August, and had the War Governor to speak on that occasion. They said the flag was to stay up until the inauguration of Hancock; but about September 28th they took it down to repair it, and said that they would put it up again the day after the Ohio and Indiana elections. Up to this time it has not made its appearance, and the pole is now standing in the Diamond of our town minus the flag. The Garfield and Arthur flag, which was put up at the same time, still floats proudly in the breeze, and will until after November 2d, when we intend to lower it—not in despair but in honor.

Pan-Presbyterians.

Many Presbyterians, and some other folks, are much puzzled over the title "Pan-Presbyterian" and its origin. In the olden time it was much the custom for the Catholics to roast Presbyterian heretics upon gridirons [which at best was ghastly torture]. Now the Presbyterians of the third and fourth generations are more particular than those grand old patriarchs of the days of the Covenanters, and they have an eye to the beautiful as well—they object to the gridiron and prefer to be roasted in the frying-pan; hence the designation, Pan-Presbyterians.

The Rev. Dr. Fowler will readily concur in this, but we do not think it necessary to ask him.

—Jim Sharp, of Valentines Forge, is one of the lucky ones who bet on the Indiana election. He bet his girl a shirt that the State would go Republican, and she, who has Democratic ideas, "picked him up." Of course he won the muslin, and will wear it to Washington on the occasion of Garfield's inauguration. We didn't hear whether Jim, in case he lost the bet, was to pay in like merchandise, or not.

—Milesburg will be the scene of a grand Republican mass meeting and torchlight procession on Saturday night next. The Garfield Guards and Colored club of this place, and the Unionville, Howard and Eagleville clubs will take part in the parade. Able speakers from a distance will address the meeting.

—The closing days of the campaign will be lively in Centre county. Republican meetings will be held every night this week and next in various parts of the county, and much effective work will doubtless be accomplished.

Facts About the Tilton Family.

The New York Sun says: Mrs. Elizabeth R. Tilton and her mother, Mrs. Joanna Morse, continue to live together at 381 Macon street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Tilton is provided for by her husband, Theodore Tilton, who continues to live apart from her, and Mrs. Morse receives a support from her husband, N. B. Morse, President of the Union Ferry Company, from whom she has been separated a number of years. Mrs. Tilton's two sons, Carroll and Ralph, continue to live with her. The former is studying for the ministry, and the latter is just about to begin school life. Misses Florence and Alice Tilton remain at Stuttgart, Germany, where they are studying music and art. Mr. Tilton's former house in Brooklyn is rented, and the occupants occasionally hold spiritualistic seances there. Mrs. Tilton leads a most secluded life.

A curious Cincinnati photographer named Bell, who was famous for quarrelling with his wife, and who committed suicide last week, had an original, if profane, way of attracting attention to his gallery, by a large sign bearing a parody on each of the ten commandments, each commandment drawing attention to his gallery, his excellency as a photographer, etc.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Railroad War.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—The railroad fight is quite as sharp to-day as yesterday, and the different offices are crowded with ticket buyers. The Chicago & Alton reduced the limited tickets to $2 70 this morning, and the Wabash immediately dropped to $1 70. The unlimited tickets remain as yesterday, $4 70 to both Chicago and Kansas City.

Burned to Death.

The residence of Jesse Morgan, about a mile from Carlineville, Ill., was burned on Tuesday night, and three children, aged 6, 10 and 13 years, perished in the flames.

Frightful Accident in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—A gravel train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad ran into a drove of cows near Stillman Valley, Ills., yesterday afternoon, and ten cars were thrown into a ditch, killing several persons. John Ryan, a section man, was killed outright. Those killed and wounded number fourteen. Three of the train hands are reported killed. Many of the wounded persons were boys living in the neighborhood, who were having sport on the train while it was switching.

The Majority in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, O., 16.—The official returns have now been received from all the counties in Ohio, which show townsend's majority for Secretary of State is 18,928. In several counties containing large cities Townsend was cut considerably on account of his temperance record. This did not have its effect upon the rest of the ticket, and hence the average majority for all other candidates will be fully 20,000.

The Indiana Victory.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—Returns from all the counties in the State except Ripley gave Porter 6,834 plurality. Ripley County gave a Democratic majority in 1876 of 225. Full returns from the Vth Congressional District gave C. C. Watson (Democrat) 881 majority. This makes the Congressional delegation eight Republicans and five Democrats.

Gored to Death.

CARBONDALE, Penn. Oct. 16.—John Stimpson, sixteen years of age, the only son of a wealthy farmer, was fatally gored to-day by a Jersey bull at the Stimpson farm, near this city. Stimpson was trying to put the bull into a stall, and the animal turned upon him, lacerating his face and head beyond recognition. His death was instantaneous.

Meeting of the National Committee.

NEW YORK Oct. 16.—The Republican National Committee met yesterday at the headquarters in Fifth-ave. to make arrangements for the final work of the canvass, and to listen to reports of the result in Indiana and Ohio. The information given by the committeemen was most encouraging. The enthusiasm of the Republicans throughout the Nation is at its height. It was urged by Southern members that owing to the success in the West, a canvass should be made in some of the Southern States, in which, they asserted, there were now good prospects of success. A stirring address, was made to Republican voters.

Sherman in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 16.—Secretary Sherman and party arrived at Racine from Chicago at noon and were escorted by the uniformed Garfield Guards to Court House Square, where speaches were made by Secretary Sherman and Governor Smith to an immense crowd of people.

A Heavy Wind-storm.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—A terrific wind has been blowing from the west all day, taking the water out of the river, causing vessels to ground, blowing down scaffolds and frames of houses and resulting in much damage of minor importance, including the disabling of telegraph wires in all directions. The most disastrous accident was on the South Side, where the stock house of a rolling mill, a building 300 feet long, 97 wide and 28 high, with a slate roof was partly blown down, causing the roof to fall and bury four persons. One of them named Jones was fatally hurt. The others escaped with serious but not fatal injuries.

Trains Blockaded by the Snow.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 18.—The storm in this State was the severest ever known. At some points passenger and freight trains along the line were blockaded in snow drifts from ten to twelve feet deep, and teams with provisions have been dispatched to their relief.

A Steamer and 50 Persons Missing.

GRAND HAVEN, Oct. 18.—A terrific wind storm has prevailed here since Saturday morning. Considerable alarm is felt for the steamer Alpena, running between this point and Chicago, and which had over fifty persons on board.

Gen. Grant in Hartford.

HARTFORD, Oct. 18.—Gen. Grant arrived in Hartford from Boston at noon yesterday and was warmly welcomed in the afternoon at a public meeting, where speeches were made by General Grant, General Hawley, "Mark Twain," and James G. Batterson. General Hawley's few remarks were happily conceived, and Mr. Clemens spoke in a characteristic vein, reminding General Grant that he was in a town the most of which was built of the "severed charter oak." In the evening there was a grand torchlight procession. General Grant left Hartford for New York at 10:25 last evening.

Shot by Her Husband.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18. — William Todd, a saloon keeper at No. 5 North Front street, fatally shot his wife, Annie, in the hallway of the saloon this morning. Todd, it seems, became enraged with his wife and while she held in her arms their infant a month old, drew a pistol and fired, the ball entering the abdomen. The pistol was held so close to the poor woman that her clothing took fire, and she would have been burned but for the prompt action of one of the employes, who tore the burning portion from her. Todd was arrested and the ante-mortem disposition of his wife taken.

Democrats Plotting Again.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 18.—The Democratic State Central Committee and leading Democrats of this city and all districts in Ohio, about 300 in number, met here Saturday for consultation. Many short speeches were made. The meeting was secret, all persons present being pledged to secrecy. Among the resolutions was one declaring that "this meeting heartily co-operates with the State Central and Executive Committees, and be confiding enough to trust them and aid them in whatever action in their judgment may seem best to undertake in this campaign."

The Pipe Line War.

ELIZABETHPORT, N. J., Oct. 18.—The fishermen of Elizabethport, Staten Island and Bergen Point are raising a fund to oppose in the courts the laying of oil pipes in Newark Bay. One thousand men or more are employed in dredging in the bay for oysters, and they claim that leakage from the oil pipes will destroy the fish and the oyster beds. A memorial praying the State government to protect the waters of the bay is also being prepared.

Pennsylvania Crops.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 18.—Returns received from the four hundred official reporters authorized to be appointed by the Legislature, show that the value of the crops raised in this State in 1880 is $111,250,000, and the value of live stock, $85,570,913. The acreage of wheat was $1,450,000; hay, 2,550,000; corn, 1,261,000, and oats, 1,156,000. The cost of fences in this State is $152,000,000.

Maine Greenbackers.

PORTLAND, Oct. 18.—The chairman of the Greenback State committee says there will be no Fusion State convention to nominate new electors, but the Fusionists will support Solon Chase and J. F. Turner, notwithstanding their advocacy of a straight Greenback ticket.

Evangelical Lutheran Synod.

DAYTON, Oct. 18.—The Evangelical Lutheran Synod is now holding its twenty-fourth regular session in this city. The Synod comprises Lutheran churches in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. Nearly five hundred clergy and lay delegates are in attendance. The session will close on Wednesday.

Guilty of Murder.

MAUCH CHUNK, Oct. 18.—The trial of Thomas Downell for the murder of Elizabeth Ray, of this place, on the 16th of September, was concluded Saturday. The jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree.

The Women's Bank.

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Mrs. Sarah E. Howe, president of the Women's Bank, on the charge of obtaining money by false pretences. Officers are searching for her.

Suicide with Poison.

ALBANY, Oct. 18.—Thomas Mercer, aged sixty-five years, a grist miller at Kenwood, near this city, committed suicide Saturday by taking laudanum.

Highway Robbery.

DENVER, Oct. 15.—This morning about two o'clock the mail coach was robbed abont fifteen miles east of Del Norte by two men. The mail and treasury box were taken. No passengers were aboard.

Thieves in London.

Considering what temptations are placed in their way, it is not wonderful that the larcenous experts of the light finger and the nimble foot flourish in this huge metropolis. A day or two since was recorded a very neat case of theft, of which a suburban tradesman was the unwilling victim. One of his light carts was out delivering goods and taking orders, and in the course of its circuit came to a stop in Maida-vale. There the man in charge left it and went into a customer's house in regular course. Unfortunately the road was "up;" a steam roller was puffing and snorting by leisurely stages over the crushed macadam, and to keep his horse safe, the judicious butter man had left the animal a few yards further off from the house than its usual position. When he returned from a brief interview with the "cook," the horse and cart had disappeared into the infinities, and with them about forty pounds of butter a large assortment of sausages, and various baskets of eggs. The police were put on the alert and in a few hours the horse and cart were discovered about a mile off, the thieves having carried away all the contents except the eggs, which obviously owed their immunity to the fact that they would not survive intact a hasty flight, while they might leave awkward tell-tale evidence of the road they took.—London Telegraph.

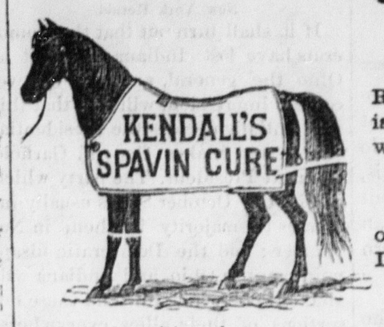
Kendall's Spavin Cure.



It Cures Spavins, Splints, Curbs Ringbones, and all similar Blemishes, and Removes the Bunch without Blistering.

For Man it is now known to be one of the best, if not the best, Liniments ever discovered.

We feel positive that every man can have perfect success in every case if he will only use good common sense in applying KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE, and persevere in bad cases of long standing. Read below the experience of others.

From Col. L. T. Foster.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 15th, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.: Gents: I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly; he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a smaller one on the other, which made him very lame. I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons, which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express; I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to send for it. They ordered three bottles. I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial. I used it according to the directions and by the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had entirely disappeared. I used but one bottle, and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles, who are now using it.

Very respectfully, L. T. FOSTER.

From Rev. P. N. Granger,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 26th, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.: GENTS. In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of Lameness caused by spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks, when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming. I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.

Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

PERSEVERANCE WILL TELL.

Stoughton, Mass., March 10th, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & CO.: GENTS: In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin cure, one very large one. Don't know now long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off, and two months for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me its sale will be very great.

Respy yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

STATEMENT MADE UNDER OATH.

To Whom it may Concern: In 1875 I treated with Kendall's Spavin Cure a bone spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he has never been lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated them with Kendall's Spavin Cure. R. A. GAINES.

Enosburg Falls, Vt., Feb. 25th, 1879.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 25th day of Feb., A. D. 1879.

JOHN G. JENNE,
Justice of the Peace.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best Liniment ever used for any deep-seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for CORNS, BUNIONS, FROST-BITES or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for BEAST is good for MAN, and we know from experience that KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE can be used on a child one year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

What is Good for Beast is Good for Man

Read of its effects on human flesh:

Patten's Mills, Wash. co., N. Y., Feb. 21, 1878.

B. J. KENDALL, M. D.: Dear Sir: The particular case on which I used your Kendall's Spavin Cure was a malignant ankle sprain of sixteen months' standing. I had tried many things, but in vain. Your Kendall's Spavin Cure put the foot to the ground again, and, for the first time since hurt, in a natural position. For a family liniment it excels anything we ever used. Yours truly,

Rev. M. P. BELL,
Pastor M. E Church, Patten's Mills, N.Y.

Bakersfield, Vt., Dec. 23, 1879.

B. J. KENDALL & CO.: GENTS: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable liniment, Kendall's Spavin Cure. In the spring of 1872 I slipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee joint. I was very lame and at times suffered the most excruciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for over a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked, it would pain me very much. In April, 1878, I began to think I should be a cripple for life, but having some of Kendall's Spavin Cure thought I would try it. I used one-third of a bottle and experienced relief at once. The pain left me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you and would recommend Kendall's Spavin Cure to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism.

Yours truly MRS. J. BOUTELL.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors.

Bellefonte Republican.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

THE last deliverance of the Democratic candidate is a very important one, and finally settles his attitude on the tariff issue. That attitude is, that he does not know as much about the tariff issue as any workingman in the mills or mines of Western Pennsylvania.

"THE SUPERB" was not among the many callers who waited on General Grant while he was in New York. The fact is, that the vanity of that eminent soldier and tariff statesman is very much hurt by General Grant's recent talk about his qualifications for the Presidency.

SOME journals which claim to be under the control of a certain element of brains, are endeavoring to convict General Grant of inconsistency because he endorsed Hancock's qualifications for a Major-Generalship, and has since declared that the Superb Soldier is not qualified to be be President. The able editors who cannot see any distinction between the qualifications required for the two different positions need not be expected to compehend the considerations which govern Gen. Grant's action.

Rats! Rats! Rats!

When those scions of political virtue (?) Gen. Ben. Butler, Gen. Daniel Sickles, Gen. Butterfield, John W. Forney, and others of that ilk gave notice that they had gone over to the Democratic party, the whole Democratic press cried out, See the rats leaving the sinking ship! And yet the vessel rides out such squalls and presses on more proudly than ever.

No, no, the moral of the departure of such men from a political party through which they were helped to honor, except when the party or the country is upheaved by revolution, is better understood by a wiser illustration. "Passengers in this bus will do well to look out for their pocket-books," said a London policeman at the door of a crowded omnibus; "there are two members of the 'swell mob' in here." "If that is the case," said a nervous young man in a white choker, who looked like a clergyman, "I will get out. I cannot risk my reputation in such company." "And I," said a respectable looking old gentleman with gold headed cane and spectacles, "have too much money about me to risk the chances of being robbed." And so both alighted. The policeman said, "drive on; they've both got out." The Republican party drives on in comfort now, several followers have "got out."

Iron, Iron Ore and Politics.

READING, October 12.—Extensive inquiry among the iron men of the Schuylkill Valley shows that many anticipate a trade standstill. One of the leading operators in iron is Henry S. Eckert, President of the Farmers' Bank of this city. He says: "Ordinary pig iron has considerably declined during the present political excitement. The metal that brought twenty-four dollars per ton a week or two ago is now netting the producer only about sixteen dollars. There are a number of producers who predict that iron will go to fifteen dollars before many days. Any one conversant with the trade will at once see that iron cannot be produced at those figures. The result is inevitable if the decline continues. Wages of the employees must either be lessened or the furnaces must blow out. I am satisfied that the leading men of the Lehigh and Schuylkill Valleys did all they could to prevent another boom in the trade some time ago. We do not want a boom. All that is desired is a regular trade at fairly remunerativepri ces. The operators I refer to were bearing the market the entire time to prevent a fictitious value for iron. Now, however, prices have gone down to ruinous figures. It is impossible to tell where it will stop. I don't anticipate a change until after the elections. If General Hancock is elected I think there will be a standstill in trade that will require a long time to move. If there are changes for the better to be made in the purchase of pig iron at the present pr ces it is commanding."

A firm of iron ore dealers of Buffalo received on Saturday, Oct. 2d, in reply to a proposition for the sale of ore, this telegram:

"ERIE, Pa., Oct. 2.—Want no more at present. Must first elect Garfield.
"RAWLE, NOBLE & Co."

And so it seems that Andrew Carnegie was not alone in his views as to the disastrous results that would follow the iron trade should Hancock be elected. Carnegie said, "If I did not believe that Garfield would be elected, I would not have signed either of your contracts for iron ore,"

Opinions of the Press.

New York Herald.

If it shall turn out that the Democrats have lost Indiana as well as Ohio the general, and, we believe, correct impression, will be that this substantially decides the Presidential contest and makes General Garfield the next President. The party which carries the October States usually increases its majority in them in November; and the Democratic disappointment in Ohio and Indiana will shake their whole line and cause desertions of their allies everywhere. In 1876 the Republicans carried Ohio in October by 5,774 majority, and in November by 7,507; the Democrats carried Indiana in October by 5,139, and in November by 5,595.

New York Tribune.

Yesterday settled the Presidential campaign. Nothing but over-confidence and impossible negligence can now prevent the election of James A. Garfield. The contest is not ended, and the work that remains is as hard and exacting as any that has yet been done. But the October victory demonstrates that it is in the power of the Republican party to elect its ticket. October settles the question. The country want no change. Least of all does it want the change proposed. Thirty-five millions are not going to lay down their power and invite fifteen millions to rule them. The solid south is met by the solid north, and the party that saved the nation will continue to rule it.

Philadelphia Press.

It looks like a tidal wave. The October States come with a glorious Republican triumph and clear the way for a conclusive Republican victory in November. The reports are of the most inspiring character. Ohio goes Republican by upwards of 20,000. Indiana, for the first time in the October elections of ten years, throws its great weight into the Republican scale. Both of them outstrip the best Republican expectations, and mark an irresistible Republican sweep. The signs are unmistakable. At last the patriotic north is thoroughly aroused, and proclaims that the government shall not pass into the hands of the solid south, and of those who would strike a deadly blow at the business and industrial interests of the land.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

It is noticeable in both Indiana and Ohio that the manufacturing towns, where capital and labor are enjoying the benefits of the Republican policy of protection of industry, the Republicans made significant gains. What the Democrats demand of capitalists and workmen was that they should vote to deprive themselves of the advantages of those wise revenue laws under which they have become so prosperous.

It must be accepted by the Democrats that, with the receipt of yesterday's returns from these States, their hopes of electing Hancock and English were utterly extinguished.

Philadelphia Times.

It may not make any difference now, but it would be an assertion of self respect on the part of the Democrats to compel the retirement of William H. English from the national ticket. He is quite as reputable as Mr. Arthur and much more of a statesman, but Arthur wasn't running in Indiana and English was.

How it Feels to Drown.

When I gave up all hopes in the water I did not suffer one pang of remorse about my past life. I have always been told that when a man is drowning, all his past life comes before him, and he suffers horrors of conscience. It was not so with me. I thought of you, my dear father and mother, and of you all at home and what a sorrow the news of my death would be to you all, and then, strange to say, I thought how people do lie. I have always been told that death by drowning is the easiest death, and yet here I am, suffering agonies of pain, and I remember wishing, if I am to be drowned let it be done quickly. Then I thought, I am about to solve the problem about the future world, and I felt the same feeling of shyness and dread come over me that I have felt so often, and never could conquer, when I was outside a drawing-room door and about to be ushered into the presence of a crowd of ladies and men. I have been asked if I never thought about the sharks which infest the place. I am thankful to say they never entered into my head. If I had remembered them I feel sure I should have gone down like a stone.—Phila. Times.

An Alabama girl prayed that her late lover might be punished with instant death for jilting her. Just about that time he was actually killed by a falling tree, and now the girl is "chewed up" with remore, thinking that her prayer caused his death.

THE OCTOBER ELECTION

Glorious Republican Victories in Ohio and Indiana.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—The election returns still furnish good reading for Republicans. Indiana keeps up the pleasant tidings. A majority of between three and six thousand for Porter, the Legislature Republican by ten of a majority, and a possibility that one more Congressman may be gained, making the number nine, is glorious enough for a State which the Democrats boasted they would carry by 10,000 majority. In Ohio the Republican majority is about 20,000, with fifteen Congressmen sure. In West Virginia the Republicans think a reduction of five thousand in the Democratic majority shows that Republicans have done their duty.

And so we get ready for a final and decisive blow that will finish Democracy in November.

The Republican State committee have returns from 84 out of 88 counties, which show Republican gains of 8,599, and a Democratic gain of 6,781. The net Republican gain for Townsend, Secretary of State, is 1,818. At the Democratic headquarters returns have been gathered from various sources, so that now all the counties have been heard from.

Chairman Nash to Chairman Jewell.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—The joyous thousands who have filled the Republican headquarters is a sufficient index of the glorious victory in the Buckeye State. All Republicans are more than satisfied with the result, while the unterrified are correspondingly down in the mouth. Even at this morning hour the enthusiasm is intense. The Democratic headquarters shut up at 1:05 a. m. in disgust. While waiting for returns Chairman Nash proposed three cheers for C. A. Boutelle, editor of the Bangor Whig, and Capt. Jas. A. Hall, of Maine, who had helped Ohio gain the glorious victory. Ten thousand voices rose loudly in response, and Captain Hall was forced to speak. He said the Democrats of Ohio were buried face downward, and were nearer hell than ever before. Illinois would follow suit he felt certain. In November New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Maine would go the same way. Said the Captain, "The Lord, the Republican party and James A. Garfield can whip the Democratic party out of its boots." Editor Boutelle said he was glad to carry such good news back to Maine. He pledged the electoral vote of that State for Garfield in November. General Chas. H. Grosvenor, of Athens, thought something had hit the Democratic party real hard, and he was glad of it. He predicted that Garfield would have 225 electoral votes three weeks from to-day.

INDIANA.

Porter's Majority, 8,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 14. — Porter's majority will reach 8,000. Eight Republican Congressmen are elected. The election of Heilman is conceded by the Democrats. In the Legislature the Republicans will have a majority of nine on joint ballot. The streets are full of people and wild with excitement.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—Additional returns received this morning do not change yesterday's estimate on the State ticket. Peele, Republican, for Congress in the Seventh district, is elected. The Congressional delegation stands: Republicans 8, Democrats 5. [The delegation now stands 6 Republicans, 6 Democrats and 1 Greenbacker.]

The additional returns received show about the same ratio of gains. The Republican State ticket will not fall short of 8,000. Congress will stand eight Republicans to five Democrats. The Republicans have a majority in both branches of the Legislature.

West Virginia.

WHEELING, Oct. 15.—West Virginia is retained by the Democrats, although the returns show large Republican gains. The Republicans carried Wood county, the home of the Democratic candidate for Governor.

How the Repeaters were Frightened.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—The night before election, as was telegraphed abroad, one of Bill McMullin's sweet smelling gang got into a row and was arrested, and in the effort to escape was shot in the head by a police officer, the bullet flattening against his skull. If he had been killed nobody in Indianapolis would have mourned much. As it was the shooting had its effect. It thoroughly knocked the starch out of the whole gang. They discovered that the respectable citizens of this State were fully awake to their rascally intentions and ready and willing to kill them on sight, if necessary, to guard the purity of the ballot box. They attempted to do no voting here. A few of them went down to Richmond and showed up at one of the polling, where they were confronted by the Deputy United States Marshal, who was informed who they were by a Philadelphia Republican, sent to the town expressly for the purpose of watching trains and identifying this kind of cattle. The marshal looked them quietly in the eye and said, "The first man of you who attempts to put in a vote here will be shot before he can get away from that window." He was backed by a number of the respectable citizens of the place, and the gang seeing that business was meant quietly retired without offering to vote. They were thoroughly cowed.

New York's Great Parade.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Republican demonstration last evening in this city surpassed the highest expectations and was a memorable and even magnificent display. Between 40,000 and 50,000 men are believed to have been in line, nearly all of them legal voters, and among them great numbers of substantial business men. Brooklyn, New Jersey and other neighboring districts sent large bodies of torch-bearers. The effect of the demonstration was heightened by the presence along the route of parade in Fifth and Madison avenues and Madison Square of such crowds of people, including thousands of ladies, that the man scarcely appeared to be exaggerating who said, "Half of New York is out to-night." The appearance of the men who marched was very fine, and the marching was excellent. There was uniform good order throughout. The enthusiasm of the men in line and of the spectators was unbounded. Many private houses were decorated and illuminated, and a constant display of fireworks greeted the various organizations. General Grant reviewed the procession in Madison Square, and received the heartiest tributes from the men in line and the assembled multitude.

A Direful Disease.

One of the South Lawrence census enumerators, says the Eagle, stopped at a house the other day where from the front door-knob hung a fold of crape, showing that the grim messenger had called and summoned a soul to the far beyond. Had he not been a Government employee he might have shirked his duty in this instance, but with due respect for the relatives of the departed dead one, he stepped lightly to the rear door, rapped and was admitted. He found there, seated in a chair with his head bowed down in grief, an aged man. After stating his business he asked the necessary questions, which were readily answered. Finally he inquired who was dead.

'My wife, sir,' sorrowfully replied the aged man.

'What did she die of?' was the question.

'Of improvements, sir,' was the reply.

'Of what?' again asked the enumerator, who thought the man did not fully understand his question.

'Of improvements, sir, of improvements,' again was the reply, more emphatic than before.

'How could that be?' asked the enumerator, his curiosity now thoroughly aroused.

'Well,' said the man, slowly and thoughtfully, 'the doctor came Monday night and said she was improving, he came Tuesday morning and said she was improving. Tuesday night he came and told me she was improving; he came Wednesday morning and she was dead. Yes,' continued the old man, 'she died of improvements.'

The enumerator did not press his question further.

A tough story comes from Vienna about lightning and a watch. The said watch couldn't be induced by any watchmaker to keep good time, till it was struck by lightning, and it has kept excellent time ever since.

Kidnapping and Murder.

The particulars of a most atrocious crime, committed a short time ago, are published in the English papers this morning. It has an especial interest for those who have made the Charley Ross case a study, as the confession of murder, made a few days ago, show that in this as in the American case the object of the criminals was to obtain a large amount of money as a ransom.

MURDER CONFESSED.

William Marianus de Jongh, clerk to the Minister to the Colinies at the Hague, confessed to murdering a school boy named Marius Bogaardt, a son of a former Secretary General, now living a retired live. The murderer laid his plans very cunningly, and before securing the boy had written a letter to the father asking for 75,000 guilders, or $30,000, for the surrender of his son, but how and where the ransom was to be paid was not clear, though it is supposed De Jongh had accomplices. The confession of how the murder was committed was told by the prisoner to his sister, to whom he was devotedly attached. De Jongh wept bitterly while giving the following account of circumstances under which the murder took place:

He said he went to the school where the boy was, called him out, telling him his mother had sent for him. The boy followed him to a quiet place where he threw him on the ground, bound his hands and feet with a cord, which he had bought that morning. "Remain here," he said to Marius, "till I return with the money that I have demanded from your father. Stop your crying if you do not want to be killed." He covered the youth with his coat and intended to go, but the boy cried so loundly that he returned. Fancying that he heard footsteps, De Jongh took his sword out of his walking stick and killed the child, stabbing him seven times in the breast. In a very agitated state of mind the inhuman ruffian fled to Schevingen, washed his hands at the sea shore and returned to the Hague, after having thrown away his sword-stick in a little channel by the roadside. De Jongh was arrested on the downs, whither he returned on early the following morning; but after being confronted with the coachman and other witnesses he was liberated. He was arrested afterward on his own confession.

Flushing.

Every one is familiar with the word flush, as applied to the crimsoned cheeks, when the minute capillaries, before invisible, become suddenly gorged with blood. The sudden full inflow is the leading idea.

The word has for a long time been applied to the cleansing of sewers by a copious amount of water suddenly let into them, and which stirs up the foul contents and bears them before it in its rush.

This method of cleansing the sink and soil-pipes of our dwellings should be systematically and thoroughly employed. An ordinary stream will flow over the sediment, and allow it to accumulate so as, in time, to fill, and always to be sending back its odor to the house. The difficulty is increased in our sink-pipes by the carelessness of servants in allowing peelings, parings, and bits generally, to enter the pipe, and by the many greasy particles which constantly pass down.

It is well, once or twice a week, to remove the strainer, and having filled a bucket with boiling water, to pour the latter into the sink at once, at the same time opening the faucet to the boiler, and allowing the whole to run two or three minutes. This will dissolve the greasy particles, and carry everything off, and render the pipe clean and sweet.

The word, of late, has been happily applied to the proper airing of a room by opening the door and the windows in the front and rear, so as to secure, as far as possible, a full rush of the air through. This is the more necessary, since the most dangerous impurity—the effluvium from the skin—is not, like the gases, subject to the law of diffusion, but tends to settle upon the floor, furniture and bedclothing.

A mere opening of a window, however long, amounts to but little beyond cooling the room

Won a Wife by His Tongue.

A frisky old bachelor who lives above Willow Ranch commenced a correspondence with a girl living in the east a short time ago, and finally proposed to her that if she would come out to California he would marry her. She consented, and he remitted to her. She arrived in Reno, Nevada, and stopped over a few days to rest. While there she heard bad accounts of Modoc; was told that the elevated portion of the country was buried under snow, and the low-lands were deep under water; that flour and sugar there were none, and when the sun sets the natives go to bed on account of not having lights. The vile wretch who slandered (?) Modock to her had an ax to grind. After thoroughly scaring her out of the idea of coming to Modoc county, he proposed marriage to her, and was accepted forthwith, she deeming it more sensibly to marry a young man and live in a pleasant home than take such desperate chances out here.—*Modoc (Cal.) EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Domestic Monthly for October.

The usual Fall Openings are now attracting to New York hosts of ladies bent upon seeing for themselves the thousand and one new things that crowd the fashion parlors and exhibition rooms, conspicuous among which are those of the Domestic Fashion Co., at the corner of Broadway and 14th Street. Here too, the Domestic Monthly is published, the October number of which is just out.

A specimen of the sober yet striking fashionable colors now in vogue for ladies' wear, is shown on the figure which forms the colored plate. It is a street toilette in laurel green, but capable, of course, of being adapted to such other colors as may suit the wearer. Full directions will be found in the succeeding pages. The other full-length illustrations show wraps, dolmans, polonaises, coats, etc., and the smaller cuts describe with all particularity the various styles of jerseys, skirts, pilgrim suits and other novelties in vogue now, or destined to be all the rage as the season advances.

In the Literary Department is found an unusually choice selection of family reading. The chapters of the serials introduce a description of an ice-yacht race on the Hudson River, a subject which has rarely, if ever, borne a part in current literature. The poetry is by well-known authors, is appropriate and beautiful, including a charming bit of verse entitled "Her Apologist," and an appropriate apostrophe to "October."

With this number Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher assumes charge of the Household Department, a subject to which, during a long life, she has devoted her attention and pen with very marked success.

The other editorial departments are full of information for all who wish to keep themselves informed on the topics which are engaging the attention of the most intelligent portion of the civilized world.

THE DOMESTIC MONTHLY is published by Blake & Company, corner Broadway and Fourteenth Street, New York, at $1.50 per year, inclusive of pattern premium. Specimen copies 15 cents.

WE have received a copy of the twelfth annual issue of the American Newspaper Directory, published by George P. Rowell & Co. Although, like all human efforts, this work is not perfect, yet we have always considered it a very useful book, and the firm that issues it deserving of great credit for their labors. Many editors have in the past found fault with the work, because, as they alleged, their circulation was put too low. While this may have been so, we should not hastily charge that the compilers of the work were governed by mercenary motives. No doubt many tried to impose upon them, and in their endeavor to arrive at the truth they may have done injustice to some. We have always found our circulation under-estimated, but we have not on that account quarrelled with the authors. Indeed, we do not think it matters much to us what they put our circulation at. We do not desire advertising outside of our own county; although we do take it. But we believe if all editors of country papers would refuse advertising away from home, unless a little more than full rates were paid and keep their good positions for their home patrons, they would all be better off at the end of the year. Many country papers that we know take foreign advertising at a price that is ruinous, and the whole fraternity are suffering for their want of foresight.

But to return to the book. The Directory is neatly printed and filled with information needed by every printer, and should find a place on every editor's table.

The September number of the North American Review contains seven articles. The first is the initial paper by M. Charnay on 'The Ruins of Central America.' This article is illustrated from photographs, which aid materially in the study of the text. An expedition under the auspices of the American and French governments, of which M. Charney is in charge, is now operating in Central America, and the explorations are likely to create an interest more profound, and to be attended with more valuable archæological results, even than came from the researches of Champollion in Egypt. They promise a new chapter in American history that shall establish the origin of the remarkable race of which nothing but splendid ruins were left when Columbus discovered the new world. Following this article is one on 'The Perpetuity of Chinese Institutions,' from the pen of S. Wells Williams. The writer has been a resident in China for many years, and is thoroughly conversant with the language, institutions, and social conditions which he discusses. Gen. John W. Clampitt, the surviving member of Mrs. Surratt's counsel, writes upon 'Trial of Mrs. Surratt.' The auther sincerely believes that Mrs. Surratt was innocent of the crime for which she suffered death, and expresses himself feelingly. 'The Personality of God' is treated by the metaphysical writer, W. T. Harris. R. B. Forbes gives some valuable suggestions in reference to 'Steamboat Disasters.' The Rev. Edward Everett Hale follows with a paper upon 'Insincerity in the Pulpit,' that will hardly fail to draw some protests from his brother clergymer. The number closes with a review of several recent works on the Brain and Nerves, by Dr. George M. Beard.

We have lately received a specimen copy of a magazine, bearing the title "Good Company," published at Springfield, Massachusetts. We have examined the work and do not hesitate to recommend it to those of our patrons who want to put themselves in good company for a portion, at least, of each month. This magazine has some of the ablest contributors adorning its pages with the pearls of thought, rich and varied. The book can not fail to instruct, entertain and amuse. The number for October, catled number 13, will open a new volume; also a new serial story by Ellen W. Olney, and if all our readers do not know it, we want to say to them that Ellen is no "slouch" at story writing. Edward Bellany will also contribute short stories, with Louise Stockton to keep him company. Louise and Edward are "a team" hard to beat. We cannot begin to name the long list of able writers for this beautiful magazine, and so advise all to send ten cents and get a specimen copy, or send $3 for a year's subscription. Adrress, Good Company, Springfield, Mass., and our word for it you will never regret it.

The Housekeeper.

Equal proportions of turpentine, linseed oil and vinegar, thoroughly applied and then rubbed with flannel, is an excellent furniture polish.

SCRUB BRUSH.—A lady writes to an exchange as follows: I wish to tell you a new use for the scrubbing brush. Take it on the wash-board to rub things that are hard to wash, such as pants, bags or carpets. You will find it much easier and better than you can possibly do it with your hands.

EGGS IN CASE OF TROUBLE.—The white of an egg is said to be a specific for fish-bones sticking in the throat. It is to swallowed raw, and will carry down a bone with ease and certainty. There is another fact touching eggs which it will be well to remember. When, as sometimes by accident, corrosive sublimate is swallowed, the white of one or two eggs t ken will neutralize the poison, and change the effect to that of a calomel.

FRENCH BEANS STEWED.—String some French beans, boil them whole in plenty of water, with salt to taste; when done, drain them dry. In the meantime cut one or two onions into thin slices lengthwise. Put them into a frying-pan with a good lump of butter, keep stirring until they are a golden color; then add the French beans, with pepper and salt to taste, and toss the whole for ten minutes, adding the least drop of stock ahd a very little vinegar or lemon juice. Serve hot.

ONIONS.—Lung and liver complaints are certainly benefited, often cured, by a free consumption of onions, either cooked or raw. Colds yield to them like magic. Don't be afraid of them. Taken at night, all offence will be wanting by morning, and the good effects will amply compensate for the trifling annoyance. Taken regularly, they greatly promote the health of the lungs and the digestive organs. An extract made by boiling down the juice of onions to a syrup, and taken as a medicine, answers the purpose very well, but fried, roasted or boiled are better. Onions are a very cheap medicine, within everybody's reach, and they are not by any means as "bad to take" as the costly nostrums a neglect of their use may necessitate.

They have no fresh water on the shore of the Persian gulf at Bahrin, but copious springs close by at the bottom of the sea. The fresh water is got by diving. The diver, sitting in his boat, winds a big goat-skin bag around his left arm, the hand grasping its mouth, then takes in his right hand a heavy stone, to which is attached a strong line, and thus equipped he plunges in and quickly reaches the bottom. Instantly opening the bag over the strong jet of fresh water, he springs up the ascending current, at the same time closing the bag, and is helped aboard. The stone is then hauled up, and the diver, after taking breath, plunges again; and the queerest thing about it all is that the source of the copious submarine springs is thought to be in the green hills of Osman, some five or six hundred miles distant.

St. Louis wives must be unusually affectionate—in a horn. Mrs. Thomas heard a pistol fired by her husband in the next room, at six o'clock in the evening, supposing he was cleaning the pistol. When she went to bed at ten o'clock he was lying with his face toward the wall and was breathing heavily, still holding the pistol in his hand. Even then this remarkably cool wife didn't investigate, but supposing it a drunken freak went to sleep. When she woke at five o'clock he was dead, but she only thought him sound asleep, and didn't find out till she came to wake him up at 9 A. M. that he had committed suicide at six o'clock the night before by shooting himself in the right ear.

Van Dyke's SULPHUR SOAP

Is superior to all other soaps. It is combined with Sulphur in its pure, unadulterated state, which enters the pores of the skin, being absorbed into the blood through the minute capillaries, and thus acts upon the skin, whether it is healthy or in a diseased condition, both locally and constitutionally, thereby eliminating all impurities from the blood, and exciting the skin to healthy action. It produces a fineness, purity, and freshness of the complexion which is unequalled, and can be produced by no other means. No toilet, nursery or bath room is complete without it. It makes the skin pure, clear, white and healthy; is cleansing, deodorizing, disinfecting, soothing, healing and purifying; removes dandruff, chafing, ulcers, sores, eruptions, roughness and redness of the skin; relieves itching, burning and stinging of the skin, and irritation of biting and stinging insects; will relieve itching piles when nothing else will have any effect. Ask for VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP; insist upon it, and take no imitation. Sold by druggists. Aschenbach & Miller, proprietors, 301 Callowhill street, Philadelphia. 12-20-1y 35

—Twenty-five or thirty wagons were in market Saturday morning, and a good variety of produce was offered. But, as is usually the case, when there is a good market there were but few buyers in attendance.

—The Republican victory in the West of course pleased the Republicans, but the fact that Sechler & Co. sell the purest and freshest groceries in the county pleases every body. Sechler & Co. deal squarely by all, which is bound to please.

—The Hancock Legion, in addition to its banner, has been furnished with a new State flag. The body of the flag is of dark blue material, with the State coat of arms in the centre. It is a fine-looking emblem, but too large for street parades.

—The Lock Haven Republican says "One of the results of the recent Democratic meeting at Clintondale has been the organization of a Garfield Club, with forty members. Better send Curtin and Alexander to every voting precinct in the county."

—The Watchman says Curtin will beat Murray, the Republican candidate for Congress, out of his boots, which is pretty far fetched. He can beat the editor of that paper out of a nomination every time, but he'll never beat Murray out of his boots

THE RATIFICATION MEETING.

A Splendid Torchlight Parade—Large Attendance from Lock Haven, Philipsburg and Various Other Places.

The demonstration in this place Friday night by the Republicans of Bellefonte and vicinity, Lock Haven and Philipsburg, was a most brilliant affair and successful in every respect. The Garfield Guards of this place were on hand early, the Milesburg club and Boggs township delegation arrived by special train of five cars at 7 o'clock, and the Philipsburg special of five cars came in at 7:45, but the Lock Haven train, owing to some tangle in railroad arrangements, did not arrive till 9:10. When it did come, however, there was such a stir in our busy town as has not been witnessed for many a day.

Immediately after the arrival of the last train the procession formed and marched over the usual route in the following order:

Detachment of Garfield Guards, followed by Pleasant Gap band.
Bellefonte Veteran Garfield club, Captain Samuel Williams.
Lock Haven Veteran Guards, Capt. G. F. Michaels, with band.
Lock Haven Garfield club, Captain McNally.
State College club, Captain David O. Etters.
Yankeetown Garfield club, Captain Kissler.
Eagleville and Howard clubs, Capt. Quigley.
Lock Haven Young Men's club, Capt. J. N. Farnsworth, with band.
Lock Haven Juniors, Capt. William Clapp.
Lock Haven Towpath club, colored.
Bellefonte Colored club, Captain Garner.
Philipsburg Garfield Guards, Capt. Harry Simler.
Philipsburg Colored Guards, Capt. Lewis Chase.
Philipsburg Veterans, in old volunteers' uniform, Major Wolslagle.
Philipsburg Juniors, Capt. Ed. Bates
Milesburg Iron-workers, Capt. J. I. Gingher.
Bellefonte Garfield Guards. 1st division, Captain Geo. H. Wolf; 2d division, Captain Lawrence L. Brown; 3d division, Captain Harry Hale. The Guards were preceded by the Bellefonte band.

The procession was very ably managed by Col. D. H. Hastings and his assistants, who were Col. D. S. Keller, John D. Sourbeck, John I. Rankin, Capt. Amos Mullen, R. A. Laird, Capt Austin Curtin, John I. Potter and Edward L. Gray. The Lock Haven clubs were very efficiently marshaled by Captain W. S. Chatham.

It was a monster demonstration, being over a mile in length and occupying over half an hour in passing a given point. The handsome uniforms, flags and banners, the fine marching and deportment of the army of enthusiastic Republicans formed a most inspiring spectacle, and the large number of men in line about twenty-two hundred lamps all told—shows that Pennsylvania is fully awake to the important issues of the campaign of 1880.

The clubs all made a very fine appearance, but the Garfield Guards of this place, the Lock Haven Young Men's club and Lock Haven Veterans deserve especial mention and more space than we are able to devote to them.

Altogether the demonstration was a magnificent success, far eclipsing anything of the kind ever before attempted in this place.

At the conclusion of the parade the Court House was promptly filled by a large and enthusiastic audience to hear the political situation discussed by the eminent speakers present. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Rankin, and organized by the election of John M. Wagner of Milesburg president, and Edward T. Tuten secretary. When the organization of the meeting had been perfected James Milliken, Esq., arose and introduced, with a a few befitting remarks, the speaker of the evening, Judge Jordan, of North Carolina, who is "a Republican in a State where it costs something to be a Republican." When the speaker arose and advanced to the stand he was greeted with rounds of applause, lasting several seconds. As soon as quiet had been restored the Judge proceeded with his speech and spoke for about one hour. The Judge is an easy but effective talker, and, considering the lateness of the hour, held his audience remarkably well. His language and delivery is good, and he has the faculty of going down deep into the bowels of the Democracy and bringing up stubborn facts for that party to ponder over. He paid a glowing tribute to General Garfield, which was received with long continued applause, and congratulated the Republican party on its bright prospects of success in November.

Mr. Jordan was followed by James Milliken, Esq., in a brief but ringing speech, ahd which elicited frequent applause.

Other able speakers were present to address the meeting, but as many in the audience were obliged to leave for their homes by special train no further attempts were made at speech making.

The meeting adjourned with enthusiastic cheering over the victory in the west and Garfield and Arthur.

The Greenbackers Nominate a Ticket.

The delegates to the Greenback-National-Labor county convention, to the number of eighteen or twenty, assembled at the Bush House yesterday to place in nomination a county ticket and appoint Congressional conferees. The townships were pretty well represented, and the business before the meeting was immediately proceeded with.

The convention was called to order by the county chairman. John I. Thompson, of Huston township, was called to the chair, and J. Miles Green, of Milesburg, appointed Secretary.

After short addresses by Messrs. Thompson, Alexander, McLelland, Yocum and others, the following nominations were made:

Assembly—Leonard Rhone, J. Miles Green.
District Attorney—Aaron Williams.
County Surveyor—Samuel T. Gray.
Congressional conferees—George Alexander, Jacob Barlet, Jacob V. Thomas.

Jacob V. Thomas was unanimously re-elected chairman for ensuing year.

As will be seen the ticket represents all shades of politics, composed as it is of two Republicans, one Democrat and one Greenbacker.

This action of the Greenbackers, in the face of the magnificent Republican victory in the West, seems like a political farce, as, indeed, it is, and what the managers expect to accomplish in this county is past comprehension.

Trying to Fool the Democracy.

Our Milesburg correspondent writes us: "The Democratic headquarters of Boggs township, viz, Central City Hotel and P. R. R. depot, is considerably alarmed over the probable result of the coming election in Boggs township in November since the glorious Republican victories in Indiana and Ohio, and it is rumored that Chairman McClain has been circulating anonymous telegrams over the township that Indiana was carried by the Democrats by 8,000 majority and that Ohio gave between 7,000 and 9,000 Republican majority. The ambitious James will learn on the 2d of November that the Republicans of Boggs are not asleep, and that his bogus telegrams fooled nobody—also, that the Hancock Legion suits and lamps do not vote."

Rejoicing Over the News.

At the State College, on Thursday night, a National salute was fired in honor of the Republican victories in Ohio and Indiana. The guns were served by the College Cadets, and handled in good shape. The booming of the cannon rang out far and wide over the country, being distinctly heard at Zion, 17 miles distant. These popular demonstrations of approval, however, are not confined to the State College. People all over the county are rejoicing over the good tidings and congratulating each other on the bright prospects of the Republican party.

—Novelists continue to represent a lover as going on his knees when propounding the matrimonial conundrum, just as they have always done time out of mind. Some contend that this is not true to nature, while others, principally young ladies, maintain that it is. But those who have never been popped to don't know anything about it, and those who have won't tell; so the outside world will probably be left in doubt until all things shall be made known. The outside world may not know much about the mysteries of love-making, but the people of Centre county do know where to buy the purest groceries, and as long as they can fill their pantries up with fresh, genuine goods, they don't care a snap how people pop the question. Go to Sechler's for your groceries, and save money and enjoy good health.

—Mrs. E. A. Nolan, conductor Ed. Nolan's pleasant wife, gave a reception Friday at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Davison, of this place, in honor of that lady's 72d birthday. Relatives of the family and a number of intimate friends and acquaintances were present to congratulate the hostess on her arrival at such a good old age and her prospects for continued health and happiness. Delicious refreshments were served to the company during the day, a generous plate of which found its way to our table, for which the senders have our thanks.

—At the Democratic rally in Milesburg on Saturday night a week ago, David A. Lucas of Boggs township, was made one of the Vice-Presidents of the meeting. We are requested by Mr. Lucas to say that this action was taken wholly without his knowledge—that he is a Republican, always was, and intends to vote for Garfield and Arthur.

ADDRESS.

To the Republican Voters of Centre County.

The importance of the issues involved in the approaching general election, impels me to address a few earnest words to the committees and clubs, and especially to the Republican voters of Centre county.

The recent elections in Ohio and Indiana demonstrate that the people of those States are alive to the issues raised, and that they regard the ascendency of the Republican party in the councils of the Nation as vital to the interests of our country.

Will the people of Pennsylvania (and particularly of Centre county) whose prosperity is directly involved in the issues of the pending struggle between the great parties, by supineness and inactivity fail to register such a vote as will eclipse the magnificent majorities of our sister States of Ohio and Indiana, that were only indirectly interested in the verdict of the people? Or, will Pennsylvania roll up such a majority as will forever set at rest the position upon the tariff and establish her industries upon a rock of protection, against which the waves of political strife will dash in vain?

These are the important questions, and the continuance of a tariff for protection the main issue as against the outlined policy of the Solid South. Every voter of Centre county should therefore candidly and coolly consider it before he deposits his vote.

A vote for the Republican ticket means a vote for the protection of our iron, our coal and our lumber interest. It means an approval of the policy of the Republican party, which produced a currency the best on the globe, abundant for all our needs and based on the existence of the Government itself; which brought about the resumption of specie payments without a ripple upon the surface of either private or public credit, and which if allowed to work out its legitimate results will clothe the whole country with redundant prosperity.

I therefore urge our committees and our many organized clubs and associations to take prompt and active measures to bring out the whole Republican vote of Centre county, in order that the business and industrial interests of old Centre may show to our sister counties that we too are distrustful of the Democratic party on this great question of the tariff, and we are opposed to the sectionalism of the Solid South.

JOHN I. RANKIN,
Chairman.

Bellefonte, Oct. 19th, 1880.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

McKee—Shaffer.

On Wednesday evening last an event of considerable importance to at least two persons, took place at the pleasant residence of H. Y. Stitzer, Esq. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Myra E. Shaffer, his daughter by adoption, to H. A. McKee, Esq. both of this place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. E. Furst pastor of the Lutheran church, in the presence of a few invited guests, at the conclusion of which the company sat down to a bountifully spread table and partook of the "goodies" thereon. The happy couple departed by the evening train on their wedding tour and were given a happy send-off by many friends who accompanied them to the depot.

The lady whom Mr. McKee has chosen for a life companion is one of Bellefonte's most respected young ladies, modest and unassuming and in every way worthy his choice.

The groom needs no words of recomendation from us, nor from any source. Everybody knows him to be a pleasant and courteous gentleman, a rising lawyer and with a bright future before him. We join with their numerous friends in wishing them many years of happiness and prosperity.

Boak—Weakly.

The residence of Mrs. Sarah Boak, of Pine Glenn, was the scene of a pleasant gathering Thursday morning, the occasion being the marriage of her daughter, Miss Anna, to Mr. C. S. Weakly, of Harrisburg. The knot was tied by the Rev. H. M. Ash, of near Huntingdon, in the presence of a few invited guests. At the conclusion of the wedding ceremonies the bride and groom were made the recipients of many useful and handsome presents. The evening train bore the happy couple away to Philadelphia and the east on their wedding tour, accompanied by Mr. T. O. Boak and Mrs. H. E. Yarnell.

—An exchange makes the following sensible remarks in regard to political meetings:

It is annoying at public meetings to hear overgrown calves bawling out and hurrahing for the opposite party. If the meetings do not meet your views, stay away. You have that privilege.

Notes on the Friday Night Parade.

Liberty township, Howard and Eagleville turned out a large delegation of fine looking men. The Eagleville club, captained by Mr. J. A. Quigley uniformed in red shirts, similar in style to the Guards, marched like old regulars and made a very fine appearance.

The College boys were quite conspicuous in the parade, and received many compliments.

Among the callers at this office after the parade were Torrence McCloskey, W. W. Richie, Peter and William Jobson, of Lock Haven.

Chief Police Clapp, accompanied the Lock Haven delegation, and marched at the head of the Young Men's Club, which, perhaps, accounts for the good behaviour of the 'tonies.'

Joseph Stiles, formerly head porter at the Bush House, commanded the colored Garfield Club from Lock Haven. Joe makes a fine looking officer, and made his men toe the mark.

Philipsburg turned out a large, fine looking, well behaved delegation. They were full of enthusiasm over the victories of last Tuesday, and will give a good report of themselves on election day.

The Bellefonte Veterans were very properly assigned the post of honor, and they filled it to perfection. Their appearance, with the addition of the sashes and badges, was not excelled bp anything in line.

The Lock Haven Towpath Club made a fine hit in selecting their name and their little boat and banners attracted much attention. Set the colored men down solid for Garfield and Arthur.

The forming of the different clubs in the Diamond in a solid body at the conclusion of the parade, was a very pretty manoeuvre, and well managed by Marshal Hastings, who, by the way, marshalled his hosts in a masterly manner throughout.

No accidents or disturbances worthy of note occurred during the parade, and with the exception of the tiresome delay in starting, owing to the failure of the Lock Haven delegations to get here on time, the demonstration passed off satisfactorily.

The Bellefonte Garfield Guards brought up the rear in fine style. They were recognized by the ladies along the route by the waving of handkerchiefs and clapping of hands, and were decidedly the favorites among the fair sex. In their marching and general deportment they may still "claim the cake."

The Milesburg Club has made a good record for itself during this campaign. They have been on hand at nearly every parade, and always receive many compliments, which are well merited. They will roll up a strong vote for Garfield and Arthur and Murray next month.

In our hurry in preparing the report of the Friday night demonstration we neglected to refer to the many beautiful illuminations about town. Residences on High, Alleghany, Bishop, Spring, Linn and Curtin streets were handsomely decorated and illuminated, particularly the latter, which was a blaze of light nearly its entire length.

The Lock Haven Veteran Garfield Club is a very large company, every man of whom served his country well during the rebellion. They are commanded by Major Geo. F. Michaels, a soldier of distinction, a most active Republican worker and a devoted Methodist. The "Vets" made their mark away up high in this place Friday night.

The colored men of the various places were nearly all in line, and deserve great praise. They are not afraid to show which side they are on, and know from which party they may expect fair and honorable treatment. The Philipsburg Club carried a banner with this most appropriate inscription: "The Republican party gave us Lincoln and Lincoln gave us freedom."

Capt. Chatham, Marshal of the Lock Haven forces, is an old soldier and carries scars to show for it. He also knows how to handle nitro-glycerine and is a thorough horseman, having practiced at circus performing on one occasion, at least in his younger days. His adventures and experiences, related in his own invincible style, would make an old stage horse laugh.

Conspicuous among the Lock Haven visitors Friday night were Harry O. Chapman and H. T. Harvey, Esq. Mr. Chapman is the very efficient chairman of the Republican County Committee, and Mr. Harvey is a lawyer of ability and one of the hardest hitting Republican orators in Central Pennsylvania. We regret that our citizens did not have an opportunity to hear him on Friday night.

The Lock Haven Young Men's Republican Club, dressed in black suits and high silk hats have been sneeringly dubbed "pall bearers" by the Democrats. They take it in earnest, however, and say they will bury the Democratic corpse so deep this fall that it can never be dug up for another campaign. And they are just the boys that can do it, too. In this club we noticed many of Lock Haven's best citizens of the young and active class.

Good Shooting.

Messrs. W. H. Wilkinson and Harry Valentine, members of the Bellefonte Sportsmen's Club, did some remarkably fine glass ball shooting at the Fair grounds Thursday afternoon as will be seen by the following scores:

FIRST SCORE.

Wilkinson	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	—10
Valentine	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	—9

SECOND SCORE.

Wilkinson	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	—10
Valentine	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	—10

In the third score, of six balls each, Wilkinson made a clear string and Valentine missed but one ball.

This shooting is hard to beat—cannot be improved upon by professionals, and Messrs. W. and V. should be, and no doubt are, proud of their scores.

The gentlemen challenge any party in Centre county to shoot for a bag of shot, or any other prize that can be agreed upon.

—The Young Men's Christian Association of Altoona will give a course of popular entertainments during the coming winter, consisting of lectures and instrumental and vocal concerts by the most prominent lecturers and musical associations in the county. We believe such a course of entertainments would be highly appreciated by the Bellefonte public if rightly conducted, and would like to see the Y. M. C. A. of this place follow the example set by their Altoona brethren.

—The Williamsport Banner is a peculiar sheet in some things. It evidently hasn't heard from Ohio, but is very particular to inform its readers, in "loud" headlines, that "Virginia has gone Democratic." Of Indiana it says the "Returns are very unsatisfactory." Yes, they are mighty unsatisfactory to the Democracy, but very satisfactory to the country. Probably the Banner has heard that there was an election in Ohio by this time.

—General Beaver returned home on Saturday from his stumping tour through Ohio and Indiana. During his absense the General addressed some fifteen or twenty monster gatherings in the Buckeye State, but doesn't seem to be any the worse for his incessant labors for the cause that is to triumph. He expects to deliver several speeches in his own State this week and next.

—We clip the following from the Conference News: Thomas H. Murray, Esq., of Clearfield, an esteemed member of the Methodist church, has been nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Twentieth district. It is a good sign when such men are put up for office.

—The Democrats are endeavoring to secure the presence of General McClellan in this place to address a mass meeting some time next week. As the General is in greater demand elsewhere, just now, we doubt if our Democratic friends will succeed in their object.

—The iron ore business is booming in Pennsvalley. All the shafts that have been recently sunk have turned out remarkably well.

—Those who use the weed cannot find a better assortment of smoking and chewing tobaccos than at Sechler's. Always a full supply on hand.

—General Beaver left Monday for Williamsport enroute for Philadelphia.
